DR. J. A. CHANDLER INJURED AS AUTO IS OVERTURNED

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—Dr. J. A. Chandler, of Swainsboro, en route from Macon to Atlanta, was injured here Tuesday morning when his car overturned.

Eyewitnesses state that a car south-bound with a Michigan tag passed a car driven by Peter J. Fenies, also of Michigan, and Dr. Chandler, while putting on his brakes endeavoring to keep from being hit, lost control of the car which overturned several times. The doctor stated that he thought his car was side swiped. Dr. Chandler was rushed to Barnesville where first aid treatment was given him. He had been visiting his daughter at Wesleyan.

DENTISTS OF GEORGIA CONVENE AT MACON

Lectures and Clinics Interest
Delegates to District Association Meet.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(P)—Following an all-day session in which the developments of present-day dentistry were shown in lectures and in clinics, members of the Sixth District Dental Association tonight attended a testimonial banquet at Hotel Dempsey, paying tribute to Dr. Richard Holmes Mason, of this city. Nearly 200 guests and members of the society were in attendance.

Each phase of the life of Dr. Mason were presented by speakers, following which a silver platter was presented to him.

Dr. R. H. Murphy, president, called the convention to order this morning.

Dr. Orren A. Oliver, Nashville, Tenn., president of the American Society of Orthodontists; Dr. R. Boyd Bogle, Nashville, president of the American Dental Association; Dr. Carl W. Hoffer, Nashville, president-elect of the American Academy of Periodontology, were among the speakers.

"It is not a matter of what the specialist or what the general practitioner wants," Dr. Oliver emphasized in his address. "It is a question of what the public wants."

"There are many measures which can be observed by the general practitioner which are of a preventive nature. Proper care in the early stages of growth will prevent worse types of malformation which at a later age will be difficult or impossible of correction."

In the removal of temporary teeth, the speaker cautioned the general practitioner to look for tendencies of the permanent teeth to move from their true position. Habits should also be watched such as sucking of tongue or mouth breathing and other habitual improper operation of the teeth and jaws.

Between the ages of four and eight the most important preventive work can be done, he stressed. Not that appliances need to be used at these ages, but corrective measures can be started instead of waiting until 12 or 14 years of age.

He emphasized particularly the misconception in the public mind that orthodontology consists in the manipulation of mechanical appliances. "These must be applied," Dr. Oliver said, "not in accord with one set formula, but after a diagnosis of the upper jaw and the lower jaw of the particular patient and the relationship between the two jaws with respect to the growth of the jaw and of the child."

He showed a number of lantern slides of cases illustrating various types of improper meeting and spacing of teeth and discussed corrective measures.

Clinics were conducted by Dr. Carl W. Hoffer, Nashville, president-elect of the American Academy of Periodontology, to demonstrate the treatment for pyorrhea and by Dr. Bogle, who demonstrated cysts and impacted third molars. The clinics were repeated with other patients to permit the dentists to witness the work in small groups.

Among those in attendance were dentists from Atlanta, Savannah, LaGrange, Cairo, Porterdale, Columbus, Easton, Fort Valley, Vidalia, Brunswick, Thomasville, Waycross, Fitzgerald, Cross, Griffin, Gordon, Jackson, Augusta, Montezuma, Forsyth, Milledgeville, Hawkinsville, Thomason, and Chicago.

Governor L. G. Hardman, who with Mrs. Hardman attended the banquet of the Sixth District Dental Association here tonight, enlivened the occasion with anecdotes of olden days.

He spoke of lack of equipment then and how the physicians of a community often had to do the dental work. "I can remember when the people of north Georgia used to come down out of the mountains and from the countryside and gather at the churches on Sunday for tooth-pulling," said the governor. "Dentists were scarce then, and it was a common thing to have these public tooth-pullings just before or immediately after religious services. All the people who needed the attention of a dentist would come."

The governor spoke of the developments that have been made in the practice of medicine, surgery and dentistry.

WESTERN UNION HEAD OPPOSES RADIO MERGER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(P)—Testifying before the senate interstate commerce committee today, Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, decried statement that merger of British wire and radio systems into a monopoly was a menace to the future development of American enterprises in the same field.

"The British merger," Carlton said, "is one of the most fantastic bogies ever built up."

He was referring to previous testimony of Owen D. Young, president of the Radio Corporation of America. Young had expressed a fear that unless congress approved consolidations of radio and cable companies, now competitors, American interests could not compete for the international business and that the British monopoly could "dictate" terms to the Radio Corporation.

In connection with the latter part of Young's testimony, Carlton told the committee that "Mr. Young is in that interesting field of conjecture."

"We have been subject to the control of the British authorities for 50 years," he said, "and nothing's ever happened." He asked that his company be left free to compete with all comers.

MARIETTA MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL INSTALLED MONDAY

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—The new mayor and city council of Marietta were installed at a meeting of council Monday night and the reins of the city turned over to the new officers and committees.

T. M. Brumby, mayor, and the following councilmen were installed: Dempsey Medford, J. L. Parker, T. J. Connor, W. P. Stephens, M. C. Wilson and W. M. Guber. J. L. Parker was appointed mayor pro tem.

C. Carriker was selected city clerk and E. L. Robertson elected city treasurer. W. L. Richardson was elected city marshal and Ed. Keefe, chief of police. F. L. Clark was elected on the police force with the following new officers being added: George Kincaid, Lloyd Jolly and Allen Brown.

GRIFFIN EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS TALK BY B. C. BROYLES

GRIFFIN, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—B. C. Broyles, well-known Atlanta attorney, delivered the principal address at the annual gathering of the Exchange Club of Griffin today.

The program was in charge of W. H. Beck, Jr., past president of the Exchange Club, of Georgia, and a number of reports were made.

Mr. Broyles is prominently identified with civic work, being president of the Atlanta Masonic Club and closely associated with many other city organizations.

GEORGIA Y. M. C. A. COUNCIL TO MEET HERE JANUARY 16

Delegates from all sections of the state are expected to attend the annual meeting of the state Y. M. C. A. council which convenes here January 16 at Luckie street "Y," called by Eugene R. Black, chairman of the executive committee. The one-day session will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning, continuing throughout the day.

Work of the past year and plans for 1930 will be taken up at the meeting, and 15 state committee members will be elected.

The finding of Melton's car and a bloodstained cap shortly after his disappearance caused authorities to believe the boy had been a victim of foul play. Since then a nationwide search has been conducted.

GENERAL PERSHING WILL NOT ENTER RACE FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(P)—John J. Pershing today announced that he would not seek to enter the senate from Nebraska.

In a telegram to his supporters in Nebraska, General Pershing said he never had and did not now seek public office, and that while he regarded the senatorship as an honor, his decision was final.

"Confirming what I said in our telephone conversation yesterday," General Pershing wired: "I do not desire, nor have I desired at any time, to seek public office. While it would be a distinct honor for any man to represent the great state of Nebraska in the United States senate, my decision must be regarded as final. Will you please advise my good friend in Nebraska to this effect."

General Pershing's telegram was addressed to Mark Woods, of Lincoln, Neb., who recently started a movement in favor of the general for next year's senatorial race for the seat now held by Senator Norris.

METHODISTS GIVE PRODUCE OF FARMS TO HELP CHURCH

WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—The Edgewood plan was adopted for use this year in the Waycross Methodist district at a conference of pastors and laymen held at the Trinity Methodist church here.

The Edgewood plan is one under which the members of the church donate the produce from one or more acres or the produce from live stock to the church.

If acres are donated the member agrees to cultivate the land according to the methods recommended by the state college of agriculture, to keep an accurate account of all expenses and receipts, and to give all of the profits from these acres to the church.

Likewise, if one donates a hen or a pig or a cow to the church, the profits from the livestock will go into the treasury of the church.

PROHIBITION LED ARREST REASONS IN COLUMBUS YEAR

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 7.—(P)—A total of 6,139 white males, 791 white females, 2,260 negro males, and 580 negro females were arrested in Columbus during 1929, according to the annual report of Chief of Police M. D. Gillis to the city commission today.

Prohibition violations were responsible for the largest number of arrests, with a total of 391, while petty larceny claimed the next highest total of 321.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. McDEVITT TO BE HELD TODAY

Funeral rites for Mrs. Jessie M. McDevitt, of 822 Montelle drive, a sister of Robert Moran, well-known Atlanta, and night city editor of The Constitution, who died suddenly Monday at a private hospital, will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The Rev. Father J. B. Abbott will officiate and burial will be in West View.

Mrs. McDevitt was the wife of William P. McDevitt, veteran employee of the Southern railway and a master mechanic in the road's Louisville (Ky.) shops.

A Doctor Knows what is best for any Stomach

Well-known authorities, famous in the medical world, have learned the certain relief for gas, "sour stomach" and similar troubles. They say: "Calcium Carbonate, 2 1/2 times as effective as soda, properly compounded, is the ideal anti-acid. It has no disturbing effect on the system, and is utterly safe in the hands of the patient. It is best used in the form of tablets."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—just the right compound of Calcium Carbonate and other soothing substances, provide swift and certain relief from sour stomach and attendant ills. Nothing equals them, and they are safe and harmless to use.

MEETING INDORSES SETTLEMENT PLAN

posed plan as embodied in the Simon-Whittington bill now pending before the congress of the United States, which would furnish demonstrations in the south of the directed efforts of home owners in solving economic and social rural problems, and requests the press of the state to give publicity to the same and also urge our senators and representatives to give their heartiest support to the bill.

Also after hearing reports of the farm loan companies and other large landowners as to the problems involved in the large acreage of idle lands in Georgia, the Georgia Association, recognizing this to be a problem of major economic importance, pledges its resources and efforts to greater co-operative effort in the satisfactory solution thereof.

Clash of Opinions.
When the conference met it found itself facing a clash of opinions as to what actually constitutes the problem and how it is to be solved.

Running back to the "tragic era" of the '80s, Colonel Pat Calhoun, owner of 10,000 acres of South Carolina land and the scion of a family that once owned a thousand slaves, said that "no revolving fund and no tariff will solve the south's farming problem—it must be worked out by the men who live here."

"Poverty," he added, "will never pass from the farming class until it is ready to strike. Now, as in the glorious past, I believe it capable of asserting itself and bringing about a great agricultural empire."

J. J. Story, representing Taft and Company, loan bankers, with headquarters in Albany, dropped a bombshell when, after reading a prepared statement from L. J. Cullen, head of Taft and Company, he declared:

"Until there is some radical change in the mental attitude of the average Georgia tenant, we may not look for any improvement in the present depressing situation."

Hits Farmers' Indifference.
Telling of the depredations practiced against property in the hands of absentee mortgage holders and managed by his firm as agents, he lashed the indifference of Georgia farmers to the property rights of their neighbors and asserted that "Until there is a 'reawakening of the moral sense' of the average Georgia farmer outside capital will never come in here again."

Applause from the conference came when W. K. Gates, of Atlanta, for some time prominent in Chamber of Commerce work in the state, charged that the south has been listening to fabled stories of "our wonderful manhood and our glorious womanhood" and by actual farming practices consistently belying the splendid traditions of the past.

"We are the greatest bunch of self-hypnotizers the world has ever seen," he declared, charging that from personal experience 90 per cent of a group of farmers borrowing $100,000 from the federal farm land banks were "thinking, at the time they signed the notes, of how they were going to be able to beat the government."

Hugh McRae, Wilmington, N. C., capitalist and colonizer, and general chairman of the southern states committee on rural development, was more optimistic but of quite a contrary kind.

"It is not the farmers' problem," declared McRae, "but it is a problem which calls for our help. There is only one way to teach agriculture successfully and that is by practical farming."

Some Model Communities.

Mr. McRae touched upon the model farming communities which the department of agriculture has agreed to set up in 12 southern states as one of the brightest hopes for rehabilitating farm lands in this section. The plan was discussed in detail later by Dr. Hugh A. Brown, director of reclamation economics of the interior department.

Dr. Brown told the conference that he was "impressed" with the "latent possibilities" of the proposed "group settlement and rural development" program in Georgia. He made special reference to the project along this line near Albany.

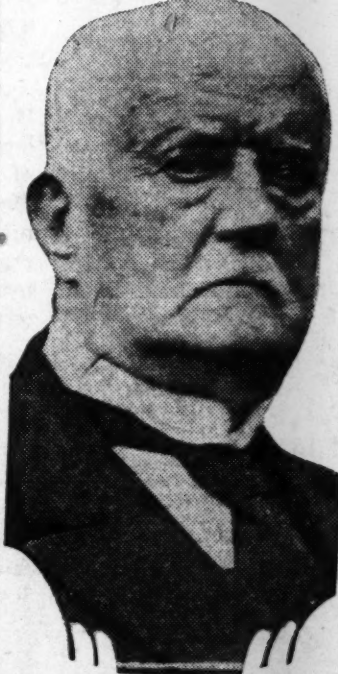

He said no one could meet the men of Georgia communities he has visited "without coming away imbued with the feeling that the south, as a unit, would join in any forward movement looking to the rehabilitation of agriculture through the medium of planned rural development."

Dr. Brown referred to the government's expenditure of $45,000 in "preliminary investigations" of opportunities in this field in the south. Attention has been confined, he said, to tracts of land in seven southern states and investigations have covered topographic and soil surveys and the setting up of programs which appeared suitable to the particular regions.

He gave a brief description of the Albany project, saying it is composed of a tract of 2,435 acres in Lee county a short distance from Albany. Thirty per cent is covered with timber and brush, he said, practically none of which has ever been cultivated, while about 5,882 acres were in crops in 1926. Value of these crops, he added, was about $19.50 per acre. Total present population of the tract was estimated at 65 whites and 466 colored.

He outlined the general plan of farm colonization, calling attention to the necessity of credit facilities for the making of crops, stocking with purebred sires for live stock raising and perfecting of co-operative marketing facilities.

ALMOST ENTIRE $10,000,000 ESTATE LEFT EX-SERVANT

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 7. (P)—Frank W. Savin, retired member of the New York Stock Exchange, left practically his entire fortune estimated at about $10,000,000 to his fourth wife and former chambermaid, according to the terms of his will filed here today.

The widow, a middle-aged Czechoslovakian, was left the entire estate with the exception of two bequests of $3,000 each to Savin's former employees in his New York office and a life annuity of $2,400 to a 10-year-old girl whom he adopted several years ago. Included in the estate is the rambling, gabled old mansion on the outskirts of Port Chester, where she served for 17 years as a maid-servant before becoming its mistress. Savin married her in 1927.

Explaining in his will that he already had provided for them by cash settlements, Savin left nothing to his son, Frank W. Savin, Jr., and his daughter, Mrs. Josephine W. Sargent. He did not mention at all an adopted son, Charles Ely Monroe, middle-aged brother-in-law of his third wife.

BANKER FAILS TO FIND SHORTAGE, KILLS SELF

Official of Georgia Companies Takes Life in Kentucky.

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 7.—(P)—Remorse because he had failed to discover a shortage in the affairs of the First National Company of this city, of which he was president, was blamed today for the death of W. S. Bradshaw who died at a hospital where he was taken after being found in his office with self-inflicted knife wounds.

In a statement issued by the First National bank, of which Bradshaw also was president, Louis Rubel, first vice president, declared the affairs of the bank were in perfect order but revealed that he had joined Bradshaw and Jesse Weil in making good a shortage in the account of the First National Company when it was discovered that employees of that company had been speculating.

"The nervous condition that led to his death," Rubel declared, "was brought about by the shortage of the First National Company which is a bond company and is in no way connected with the First National bank. Mr. Bradshaw allowed this incident to prey upon his mind."

Born in Paducah in 1878, he was graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1899 and after studying at the Columbia Law school began practicing here in 1900.

Among other connections, he was vice president of the Georgia Manufacturing Company; a director of the National Bank of Athens, Ga.; a trustee of Vanderbilt University, of the American and Kentucky Bar Associations and a former president of the Kentucky Bankers' Association.

His widow, Mrs. Rosema White Bradshaw, and a daughter, Miss Julia Ashton Bradshaw, survive.

HARDMAN OPTIMISTIC ON STATE'S FINANCES

Georgia's Indebtedness Reduced $1,000,000 During Year, He Says.

Governor L. G. Hardman Tuesday expressed a note of official optimism by declaring the state to be in better financial condition than in several years, with a total indebtedness of $2,884,000 on December 31, 1929, not including bonded debt and amounts owing departments on appropriations. This figure, the governor said, is nearly $1,000,000 less than a year ago. He pointed to payment of $1,184,000 on December 31 to the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, and $500,000 paid today to Atlanta banks, both on school loans, as reducing the state's indebtedness to $1,700,000. Of this balance, he said, $500,000 more will be paid probably in the next week and the remainder retired by February 28. A balance of $1,500,000 is yet due the Atlanta banks, he said, and $470,000 to the New York concern, the latter being due the last day of February.

Governor Hardman said these items are all owing by the state for money borrowed, with nothing remaining of loans made in 1928. To Pay Pensions. Confederate veterans pensions for the last quarter of 1929, amounting to about $323,000 and due January 1, he said, probably will be paid by the 15th or 20th of this month. He called attention to the return of the revenue department for December collections of the tax on cigars and cigarettes, due to be made to the treasury on January 15, as offering the hope of increasing the amount to the credit of the pension fund to $254,000. The treasury now has $127,948.21 to the credit of this fund, he said, and the balance necessary to meet the final 1929 payment will be made up from the general fund, as provided by law. He said November collections of the revenue department, return for which was made December 15, was the largest for a single month since the state passed the tobacco tax law. The last legislature amended the pension law, providing that veterans be paid monthly instead of quarterly, the governor said. But he added that he was not "exactly clear" on provisions of the new law and any action toward meeting payments under its authority would be held up pending a ruling by the attorney-general, which he was asking.

Against Borrowing. The governor said he would set aside 80 per cent of the remaining revenue to the general fund for the satisfaction of old obligations until all these are met and would distribute the other 20 per cent among state departments and institutions. Disapproval of borrowing money was voiced by the executive. He declared he considered it much the sounder method to distribute available money among departments and institutions working under direct appropriations and saving the interest. He called attention to $500,000 paid out by the state last year for interest on temporary loans, and said if the $2,000,000 proposed loan for the highway board under the Barrett act had been made, it would have meant another $100,000 in interest. Discussing prospects, the governor said the Boykin net income tax act, if upheld as constitutional, together with the gross receipts or sales tax, will mean additional revenue. While no estimates as to their probable yields have been furnished him, he said, if together they bring in $3,500,000, the state will be in excellent condition by the end of 1930.

Change Announced In Gross Receipt Tax Regulations

R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, Tuesday announced an amendment to rules and regulations governing the gross receipts tax law as it relates to wholesalers and jobbers, which will relieve from taxation all shipments of goods where the origin and destination of such goods are both without the state of Georgia. Rule 2 of article 6 of the rules and regulations was amended by striking out the following words, "or governed by invoices issued from the Georgia office." The section now reads, "All gross receipts of the business must be returned for taxation whether derived from shipments within or without the state, provided the goods are shipped from Georgia stores or warehouses." The change, it was said, was made because of the doubtful legality of the requirement that goods not touching the state must be included as gross receipts when invoiced from a Georgia office, and for the further reason that it might have a tendency to cause sales and branch offices to remove from or locate without the state.

When You're "Skinny," Nervous Watch Out! How to Gain Quick

Underweight People Liable to Grave Diseases Say Doctors. Gain 5 to 15 lbs. Quick With New IRONIZED YEAST

Pleasant Tablets. Quick Results—or No Cost
The over-thin person is much more susceptible to dangerous diseases, according to a famous physician. Furthermore, such diseases are more fatal to such people because they have no reserve strength to draw on. But there is no excuse to remain dangerously "skinny" or weak, since the discovery of IRONIZED YEAST. Thousands who could not gain before say gained 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 short weeks. Ugly hollows fill out. Bony limbs become gracefully rounded. Bleached skin clears. New energy overnight.

Why You Gain Weight Quick
Because this new, more powerful IRONIZED YEAST is two tonics in one—specially cultured, weight-building Malt Yeast and blood-enriching Iron. Highly concentrated by a new process which makes it many times more effective than unmediated yeast. Gives results in half the time required by ordinary yeast or iron.

NEW IRONIZED YEAST QUICKLY BUILDS WEIGHT AND NERVE FORCE

Banishes Indigestion and Constipation. Clears Complexion

Thousands of men and women, once "skinny," tired and nervous, have been astounded at quick weight-building and health-giving results of IRONIZED YEAST. Grateful letters report gains of 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 short weeks. They eat and sleep better. Their nerves are stronger. Their complexions have become clear and rosy. They say they have doubled their strength and energy. Yet the reason is simple. IRONIZED YEAST is two marvelous tonics in one—weight-building Malt Yeast and strengthening, blood-enriching Iron. All concentrated into little easy-to-take tablets that are many times more effective than unmediated yeast. Get IRONIZED YEAST from drugists today. Feel great tomorrow. New pounds quick. Money back guarantee.

Nervous, Run-down, Tired Girl Gains Health Quick

ASHLAND, Kans.—Friends are congratulating Miss Goldie Sawyer on her wonderful improvement in looks and health. She says: "I was terribly nervous and run down. Tried IRONIZED YEAST. The first bottle helped my nerves and began to clear my complexion. Am on my second bottle now and have gained 4 lbs. No more tired feeling either."

EIGHT ARE INDICTED
IN KENTUCKY LYNCHINGFour Are Denied Bonds on Charge of Willful Murder.

JACKSON, Ky., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Four of eight defendants accused of participating in the mob slaying of Chester Fugate were committed to jail without bail today after they and the other four had been indicted for murder and conspiracy to murder. Fugate was removed from the Breathitt county jail and shot 14 times by a mob Christmas morning, and in a death statement named six alleged members of the mob. In addition to these six, former jailer S. L. Combs and his son, Lewis Combs, were indicted on conspiracy charges.

The six men indicted for murder are kinsmen of Clay Watkins, for whose murder Fugate was being held in jail. They are: S. J. Watkins, brother; Lee Watkins, nephew; Benton Howard, nephew; Allie Watkins, son; Earl Howard and L. K. Rice, son-in-law.

Circuit Judge Chester Wright announced a special term of court for February 3 to try the defendants. S. L. Combs, former jailer, and his son, Lewis Combs, have not been arrested and bench warrants for them were handed to Lee Combs, son of S. L. Combs, for service. Lee Combs is sheriff.

Earl Howard, one of the defendants, did not appear and the court will decide whether to forfeit his $10,000 appearance bond. It was reported that he had injured himself in a fall from a barn.

Allie Watkins, 16, son of the man Fugate killed, also was indicted, and his case transferred to juvenile court. Those jailed were S. J. Watkins, Lee Watkins, Benton Howard and L. K. Rice.

HE CLAIMS IS DUE

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Suit to cover $50,000 from the American Benberg Corporation for salary and personal damage as the result of what he says was his summary discharge several months ago has been filed in chancery court here by H. F. Marthaus, former engineer of the rayon plant.

NEW DEFICIENCY
ESTIMATES SENT TO LAW MAKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover today transmitted to congress supplemental estimates of appropriations for the executive office and independent establishments amounting to $16,557,494 for the fiscal year 1930.

The deficiency estimates included $15,250,000 for the veterans' bureau, of which $8,000,000 would be for hospital facilities and services and the remainder for military and naval insurance; $190,000 for maintenance of the White House and grounds; $200,000 for continuing construction of the Arlington Memorial bridge across the Potomac river; $240,000 for the federal trade commission; $10,000 for salaries in the civil service commission; $8,000 for contingent expenses of the executive offices; $37,000 for the federal board for vocational education; $31,000 for the federal ration commission; $104,374 for the office of public buildings and parks of the national capital; $140,000 for acquisition of a site for warehouse for the director of public buildings and parks, and $21,000 for the Smithsonian institution.

HOOVER SOCIAL BODY IS FORMED
BY INCORPORATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Incorporation in Delaware of the research committee on Social Trends, Inc., with Wesley C. Mitchell, professor of economics in Columbia University, as president, to conduct the survey into social changes in American life recently ordered by President Hoover, was announced today by Gilbert H. Montague, legal counsel of the corporation.

The board of directors of the corporation includes Professor Mitchell and four others named by President Hoover as members of the survey committee. They are Charles E. Merriam, professor of political science, University of Chicago; William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology, University of Chicago; Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology, University of North Carolina, and Shelby M. Harrison, vice general director of the Russell Sage Foundation.

NORTH CAROLINA
MINISTER DIES
OF GUN WOUNDS

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Rev. E. Frank Lee, pastor of Calvary Methodist church here, who was shot by a negro last Friday night, died early today.

Death came unexpectedly, physicians believing him to be rallying from the dangerous wounds received when he accosted a negro intruder in the back yard of his home.

Three suspects have been named, but serious had been the Rev. Mr. Lee's condition that police were not permitted to have him attempt identification.

The minister had gone to his coal shed Friday night, and returning, saw a negro looking in the bathroom window. When asked what he was doing, the negro whirled and fired twice, one bullet striking Mr. Lee in the hand and the other in the abdomen.

RETAIL RUM TAX
DECISION LOST
BY GOVERNMENT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The fifth United States circuit court of appeals today reversed a decision of the lower court awarding the government $2,002 in alleged retail liquor dealers' taxes from Anthony Lafrance, proprietor of the Delmonico restaurant.

The alleged sales of liquor were made to "dry" government of the government and suit was filed in federal district court November 3, 1927, to collect the taxes alleged due. The case was argued before Judge Ben C. Davis and a decision handed down favoring the government.

Lafrance was fined $300 and given a year's suspended sentence on his plea of guilty to violating the prohibition law. Counsel for Lafrance argued that the liquor tax decision in view of the sentence for sales subjected the client to double jeopardy.

Treasury Heads
Claim Liquor Flow
Off During November

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Official Canadian reports made available today at the treasury indicated that exports of alcoholic beverages from Canada to the United States for November amounted to 235,486 gallons, a decrease of 225,416 as compared with November of 1928.

The decrease in clearances of liquor from Canada to the United States started last May and has shown a drop as compared with the previous year for each month since then. The treasury started a drive in May by concentrating prohibition agents, customs agents and coast guard agents and boats along the Great Lakes to prevent smuggling of liquor from Canada.

Assistant Secretary Lowman said that "quite a percentage" of the intoxicants exported from Canada during last November was seized by customs, coast guard and prohibition authorities.

BRITISH DOMINIONS
SEEK GREATER FREEDOMAsk To Be Given Right To Make All Laws Independently.

BY CONSTANTINE BROWN.
(Copyright, 1930, for The Constitution by the Chicago Daily News.)

LONDON, England, Jan. 7.—Complete freedom in law making for the British dominions is asked for in resolutions adopted by the last dominions conference in London and made public today. The conference proposed that the colonial validity act of 1865 giving the British parliament the right to legislate for the dominions be repealed, and that a statement be incorporated in British law that "no law hereafter made by the parliament of a dominion shall be void or inoperative on the ground that it is repugnant to the law of England."

In place of the antiquated colonial act the dominions proposed that the next imperial conference provide that "no act of parliament shall extend or be deemed to extend to a dominion unless it is expressly declared that the dominion concerned has requested and consented to the enactment thereof."

If such an act is accepted by the British parliament—and there is no reason to suppose that it will not be—the dominions will be placed on a footing of equality with the upper and lower houses in Westminster.

The conference also declared that if the Prince of Wales ever decides not to ascend the British throne, his successor will have to be accepted by all the dominions. The reason for this is that the crown is the symbol of the union of the members of the commonwealth, which are bound together legally by common allegiance to the king, and that therefore any change in the laws of succession or the manner of electing the monarch must be approved by the dominion parliaments as well as by the British legislatures.

GIRL ADMITS LIE
WHICH SENT FATHER
TO PENITENTIARY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Viola Duke, 19-year-old Memphis girl, today confessed to juvenile officers her testimony which sent her father to a Texas penitentiary six years ago for a 25-year term was false, and will leave Sunday to plead for his release.

She told officers she testified that her father assaulted her and that her testimony in the trial at Corsicana, Texas, sent him to prison.

She said she blamed her father for the wrongs of another man. The San Antonio unit of the Spanish-American War veterans' return money here for Miss Duke's return to Texas. Her father was a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

Miss Duke lives at a convent here.

ARTILLERY SCHOOL
LOCATION BOARD IS NAMED BY HURLEY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Hurley today appointed an army board headed by Brigadier General Cruikshank to recommend a permanent location for the field artillery school.

The school has been conducted at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where a serious fire recently destroyed many of the temporary buildings which comprised the post. The army artillery board, on the other hand, is at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and it is understood the board will consider the possibility of combining both activities on a single reservation.

Other members of the board are Brigadier General Bash, assistant to the quartermaster general, and Lieutenant Colonel Bryden, of the field artillery.

EICH WILL STAND
TRIAL FOR WIFE'S
DEATH JANUARY 21

TRIAL OF Ernest Eich on a charge of the murder of his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Eich Tuesday was set by Solicitor General John A. Boykin for January 21. Eich was a new trial by appeal to the state supreme court following his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment.

Len B. Guillebeau, attorney for Eich, recently filed a petition for Eich's release on bond, declaring that at that time he had been unable to get the case set for trial. The bail petition will be heard Saturday by Judge Virlyn B. Moore.

OFFICERS' ACQUITTAL
ENDS M'PHERSON CASEPolice Cleared of Bungling in Sensational Capital Killing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—With the acquittal of two police officers, Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieutenant Edward J. Kelly, on charges of bungling the investigation of the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, nurse, the McPherson case and its ramifications apparently have come to a definite end.

The report of an extraordinary board which tried the two officers held that they made a thorough and searching investigation of the death of Mrs. McPherson and should be commended for the efficient manner in which they handled the case.

Mrs. McPherson was found strangled to death in her apartment several months ago and the case was reported a suicide. Later, however, largely because of charges by a patrolman, Robert Allen, a new inquiry was begun which resulted in the indictment of the woman's husband, Robert McPherson, Jr., on a charge of murder, the denunciation of Shelby and Kelly and attacks on the police department at the capitol, notably by Senator Bleasie, democrat, South Carolina.

A flaw was found in the indictment of McPherson and a subsequent grand jury refused to indict him. Allen was dismissed from the police force. Senator Bleasie refused to testify before the grand jury and the final chapter came last night with the acquittal of Shelby and Kelly.

PRESIDENT MOVES TO HASTEN START
OF WORK ON P. O.

Governor L. G. Hardman Tuesday announced that he had received assurance from Lawrence Richie, secretary to President Hoover, that the early construction of the projected $2,000,000 postoffice was being given serious consideration.

The letter said that Governor Hardman's request in this line had been considered by the president and referred to the treasury department. The president, the letter said, urged that the treasury officials give serious thought to starting work on the structure at once.

3-YEAR STUDY
OF TOOTH DECAY
TO COST $105,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A three-year study to seek the cause of tooth decay will be made by the Columbia School of Dental and Oral Surgery under a grant of $105,000.

The money was given by the commonwealth fund and the study will be made in co-operation with a group at Yale engaged in similar work under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, and also with other research workers in this country and Europe.

Dean Alfred Owe declared discovery of a means to prevent dental decay would be of the highest importance to health. He said the old theory that decay was due solely to acid films formed on the surfaces of teeth by the fermentation of food deposits was inadequate. He pointed out that some persons who never use a tooth brush do not suffer from tooth decay while others who brush their teeth five times a day do.

CHANGES IN CHARTER
OF MERCER U. SOUGHTPetition Filed in Bibb Court by Baptist Committee and Trustees.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Amendments to the 100-year-old charter of Mercer University here, which, when granted, will completely reorganize methods of administration, are sought in a petition filed in Bibb superior court this afternoon.

The petition was brought by the executive committee of the Georgia Baptist convention and the board of trustees of the local institution, and seeks authority, among other things, to limit members of the board of trustees to a term of five years, and to create an endowment commission elected by the board, but from without its membership.

The amendment will authorize the nomination each year of two members of the board of trustees by the alumni of the institution.

The endowment commission, according to the petition, will not be subject to any direction or control by the board of trustees in the investigating of endowment funds or in handling or management of investments, or otherwise, but shall render its recommendations available to the board as needed, and make such regular or special reports to the board, for its information, as the board may require.

The commission will elect its own officers and adopt its own rules of procedure, under the proposed amendments. The commission will be created at the first meeting of the board of trustees following the granting of the charter amendments.

The petition says that "all money, and property of any sort, hereafter given, granted, conveyed, bequeathed or devised to or for the use or benefit of the institution, or to or for the use of benefit of any college, school or department thereof, or to the corporation now known as the trustees of the Mercer University, shall, unless otherwise specified by the grantor, be managed and controlled exclusively by the endowment commission."

The amendment was authorized by the Georgia Baptist convention and the board of trustees.

WOMAN BADLY HURT
WHEN HIT BY AUTO
AS SHE LEAVES CAR

Mrs. Lorena North, of 332 Techwood drive, was admitted to Grady hospital Tuesday for treatment of probable internal injuries received when she was struck by an automobile driven by J. L. Dollar, of 926 Hampton street, according to police reports. She was removed to the hospital by Mr. Dollar.

As she alighted from a trolley car on Lee street near Fort McPherson, Mrs. North said she became dizzy and failed to see the approaching machine.

Gilbert Will Open
Birth Registration
Educational Drive

The birth registration educational campaign of the state board of health will be officially opened at 6 o'clock Wednesday night over WSB by Justice S. Price Gilbert, of the supreme court of Georgia.

The campaign was to have been opened by Governor Hardman, but owing to an unavoidable absence from the city he will not be able to make the opening address. Consequently, Justice Gilbert will represent the governor.

The address will begin promptly at 5:50 o'clock central standard time.

ALLIED UTILITY FIRMS PLAN COHESIVE GROUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(P)—A re-alignment of several of the Morgan-Bonbright public utility properties to simplify corporate structure was announced by B. C. Cobb, chairman of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, today.

The plan contemplates the merger into the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation of the Allied Power & Light Corporation, as well as Commonwealth & Southern's three principal subsidiaries, the Penn Ohio Edison Company, the Southeastern Power & Light Company, and the Commonwealth Power.

These three companies own the common stock in the principal operating companies of the Commonwealth & Southern system. Commonwealth & Southern already owns more than 96 per cent of the common stock of these companies. Their absorption would, therefore, eliminate from the system three holdings corporations now deemed needless.

Allied Power & Light was organized May, 1922, as a holding management, construction and engineering company. It owns a substantial block of Commonwealth & Southern stock, and its management and engineering services are employed by several of the Commonwealth & Southern subsidiaries.

The merger plan must be approved by stockholders of the several companies, and would be accomplished through exchanges of stock. As the various companies are incorporated in different states, the merger of the five could not be accomplished simultaneously. The outstanding stock of Commonwealth & Southern would not be affected. Commonwealth & Southern Corporation was organized only eight months ago as a holding company for the Penn Ohio, Southeastern and Commonwealth & Southern.

Giving effect to the proposed plan, Commonwealth & Southern's net earnings for the year ended November 30, last, were $25,455,673, equivalent to nearly 75 cents per common share.

The common stock was placed on a 60-cent annual cash dividend rate today with declaration of a quarterly dividend of 15 cents. Payments of 1 1/4 per cent in stock were made in September and December.

SURGEONS TO HOLD PUBLIC CONFERENCE

The community health meeting Monday evening of January 13, at 8 o'clock, in the Wesley Memorial church, will be one of the outstanding features of the sectional meeting of the American College of Surgeons to be held in Atlanta Monday and Tuesday for the states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana. Several hundred surgeons and hospital executives are expected to attend the two-day conference.

The program for the health meeting will be furnished by a group of visiting surgeons and hospital executives. The talks will not be lengthy technical discourses on scientific subjects but will be especially prepared for a lay audience. No one speaking will be given more than eight to twelve minutes. At the conclusion of the program a motion picture will be shown. The program is of interest to a health subject in an interesting as well as instructive way.

The visiting speakers who will take part in the program for the community health meeting and their topics are as follows:

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Chicago, director general of the American College of Surgeons, will tell of the work the college is carrying on in all parts of the country; Dr. George W. Grille, Cleveland, of the board of regents of the American College of Surgeons, will tell about "The Medicine of the Future"; Dr. Robert B. Greenough, Boston, assistant professor of surgery Harvard University medical school, and chairman of the committee on the treatment of malignant diseases, American College of Surgeons, will discuss the "Control of Cancer"; Dr. Willis C. Campbell, Memphis, professor of orthopedic surgery, University of Tennessee college of medicine, will address "The Control of Cancer"; Dr. Herbert L. Willett, Jr., Washington, D. C., associate director of the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine, will tell of the work of the institute in his "Preventive Medicine from the Standpoint of the Layman"; Robert Jolly, Houston, superintendent of hospitals, will ask you to "Consider the Hospital."

STATE CAPITOL
REPAIRS START IN NEAR FUTURE

The work of renovating the state capitol will begin in the immediate future, it was announced by Governor J. G. Hardman Tuesday.

Architects are now engaged in preparation of plans, the chief executive stated, and as soon as they have been completed steps will be taken to begin work.

An appropriation of $250,000 was made by the last legislature for renovating the capitol. Due to the financial condition of the state work was not begun during the year, although approximately $50,000 was spent to buy two lots adjacent to the capitol.

Plans for renovation of the building include reclamation of space on the ground floor, beautification of the entire structure, installation of adequate plumbing, a new electric wiring system and modern elevators.

Joint installation of officers of four local lodges of I. O. O. F. will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Ansley hotel roof garden, it was announced Tuesday.

Officers of the following lodges will be installed: Patriotic lodge No. 75, Hemphill lodge No. 228, Dixie lodge No. 104 and Piedmont lodge No. 105. The general public is invited.

BANKERS OF STATE PLAN OCEAN CRUISE

Trip to New York Convention Will Be Made on Steamship.

Georgia bankers will include an ocean cruise to New York in the plans for the thirty-ninth annual convention, sailing from Savannah on the steamship Savannah June 7. This cruise was authorized by the executive council meeting in Atlanta Tuesday.

The executive council ratified plans for group meetings this spring in Valdosta, Canton, Bainbridge, Thomasville and Aiken, S. C., where a joint meeting will be held with the neighboring South Carolina bankers. The group meeting programs will be devoted to the improvement of agriculture in the state and the production credit requirements of the National City Bank of Rome and the Moultrie Banking Company, of Moultrie, will be presented to each meeting by John M. Graham, of Rome, and W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie.

John M. Graham, president of the National City bank at Home, was elected chairman of the council. Others in attendance were President Gordon L. Groover, who is vice president of the Citizens & Southern National bank in Savannah; W. N. Harrison, of Lavonia; W. S. Elliott, of Canton, and Miller R. Bell, Jr., of Milledgeville.

ATLANTA HUMANE SOCIETY HELPS
SAVE DOG'S LIFE

Ambulance service of the Atlanta Humane Society Tuesday night probably saved the life of a valuable German police dog which was run over by an automobile in Peachtree road near Peachtree creek, according to Miss Leila Roberts, secretary of the society. The dog was carried to the veterinary hospital at 1033 Marietta street, and will probably recover from his injuries, Miss Roberts said.

Relieves
Grippy Aches
IN 3 MINUTES

When one of those grippy, aching colds comes on, and you want immediate relief, go to any drug store or soda fountain and ask for a package or dose of "B-C" (10c and 25c). Three minutes after taking, the pain begins to recede, your nerves are rested, fever reduced and comforting relief sets in.

"B-C" contains five ingredients that function together for the relief of pain (fever, pain, headache) regardless of its origin, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours.

In the treatment of raging headache, sinus pain, neuralgia or earache due to colds, "B-C" is unequalled, being absolutely safe, free from opiates or habit-forming drugs, and may be taken as often as needed.

To avoid imitative substitutes, don't ask for a headache powder, but specify and insist upon "B-C" and get the original and genuine that never fails to bring quick and comforting relief.

$200.00 Paid For One Copper Cent

J. D. Martin, of Richmond, Va., is the proud possessor of a check for $200.00 paid him for an old copper cent. The Numismatic Company, Dept. 623, Fort Worth, Texas, who purchased this penny from Mr. Martin, says there are numerous old coins, bills and stamps in circulation for which they gladly pay big cash premiums. So that you will know the value of old coins and stamps and what to watch for in your change, the Numismatic Company will send for only 4c to any reader of this paper who writes them, a large illustrated coin folder describing some of these wanted articles and the big profits to be made. Better write them today for this large folder so you can post yourself and know just what to look for. Remember that Mr. Martin's knowing the value of his penny meant a difference of $199.99 to him. Without knowing its value that penny might still be in circulation, passing through the hands of thousands until someone like Mr. Martin, who knows old coins, recognized its value. It pays to be posted. Send 4c now for the illustrated coin folder. You have nothing to lose, everything to gain.—(adv.)

COTTON CO-OP GROUP TO GO TO WASHINGTON

Atlanta Leaders Seek To Obtain Southern Agency for City.

Impetus to the movement to secure for Atlanta the $30,000,000 cotton co-operative marketing agency of the south was indicated in an announcement that a delegation of civic and commercial leaders would leave today to be present at the co-operative committee conference in Washington Thursday.

The conference is being sponsored by the federal farm board appointed by President Hoover to aid the agricultural industry. The co-operative committee is composed of one director appointed by the cotton co-operatives from each state in the cotton belt. It is expected to designate the cotton marketing center at the conference or shortly following.

Atlanta's delegation will include Robert F. Maddox, of the First National bank, who will make the presentation for Atlanta; H. Lane Young, of the Citizens & Southern National bank; Ronald Ransom, of the Fulton National bank; Haynes McFadden, of the Georgia Bankers' Association; T. W. Tift, head of the Atlanta Commercial Exchange; J. E. Conwell, president of the Georgia Cotton Co-operative and director from this state on the Washington committee; Frank K. Shaw, secretary of the industrial bureau, and B. S. Barker, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The committee will open its conference in Washington at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Besides that of Atlanta, delegations from New Orleans, Memphis, Dallas and other cities of the south seeking the headquarters of the co-operative marketing agency are expected to appear before the committee in behalf of the various cities.

The Atlanta delegation proposes to stress advantages of the location of the co-operative selling headquarters here because of geographic location, railroad termini and Atlanta's juxtaposition to the spinning industries of North Carolina and Georgia, Mr. Maddox stated Tuesday.

"It is of utmost importance that the selling agency of the co-operatives be in close contact with the people who consume the cotton," Mr. Maddox explained. "These things are constituted by the spinning and textile mills which Atlanta can so easily serve. This factor and the other advantages of Atlanta that have been recognized by the largest commercial elements throughout the nation mark Atlanta as highly efficient for transaction of the business of the proposed cotton selling agency."

The proposed headquarters is to handle the sale of all cotton for co-operatives of the entire south, operating as a single selling power and receiving the support of the federal farm board.

Ivan Allen, chairman of the industrial bureau Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and one of the leaders in the movement to get the marketing agency for Atlanta, Tuesday doubted that he would be able to make the trip to Washington, following injuries suffered in a fall Monday when he fractured his right arm and sprained an ankle in a fall at his home.

A. H. Legge, chairman of the federal farm board and Carroll Williams, member of the board representing the cotton interests, who are now visiting in New Orleans and will return to Washington for the conference, are due to pass through Atlanta Thursday morning. A breakfast is being arranged for the two board members by the Atlanta Clearing House and the Chamber of Commerce.

U. S. Court of Appeals Dismisses $39,000,000 Suit Against Astors

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals today upheld without opinion the decision of Federal Judge Thacher, dismissing the $39,000,000 suit brought by certain heirs of John Nicholas Emmerick against Vincent Astor and the trustees of John Jacob Astor, Sr. The plaintiffs based their claim on a partnership agreement, alleged to have been entered into in 1787 between Emmerick and the senior Astor.

Judge Thacher ruled the claim was too old and the only recourse left now to the plaintiffs is the possibility of obtaining a writ of certiorari from the United States supreme court.

Atlanta Navy Goes Through Operation of Warship For U. S. Examining Board, Here on Inspection Tour

For two hours Tuesday night a full complement of a ship's crew in Uncle Sam's navy went about the operation of a war vessel not two blocks from where the night crowds were filling the theater district of Peachtree street.

Those taking part composed the Atlanta battalion of the United States naval reserves, the members of which were inspected last night by Captain Charles A. Blakely, U. S. N., Commander C. C. Slayton, Washington, D. C., and Lieutenant J. J. Fitzgerald, U. S. N., Charleston, S. C.

The reviewing officers, who are on a tour of inspection through a number of states which have reserve naval corps, are not allowed to reveal their rating of the units which they inspect until they return to Washington with their reports.

Tuesday night they found the local reserve unit assembled in full strength. Every man was in attendance in full uniform and local officers were enthusiastic over the showing made.

The Atlanta unit, they said, had increased from 62 members in 1927 to 120 in 1929. A corresponding increase in activities has been shown. Attendance has increased from an average of 53.5 per cent in 1927 to 91.8 per cent in 1929.

Few know it, but at the naval reserve headquarters on Baker street there is what is to all intents and purposes, a sea-going ship. Its plan is laid out on the floor of the unit's headquarters. Signs indicate hatches, guns and fire plugs, and on what would be the bridge there are the compass, helm and engine room controls. They are mounted on a movable platform, turned by moving the

Goods Worth $140,000,000 Manufactured Here in Year

Figures collected by the industrial bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce reveal that during 1929 products valued at $140,000,000 were manufactured in the Atlanta district, emphasizing the city's strides in industrial expansion.

Stamped with the word "Atlanta," these products are shipped to all parts of the world, the bureau pointed out, a constant advertisement that this city is one of the southeast's substantial centers.

The bureau's figures showed that in 1929 more than 500 merchandise and package freight and express cars were handled each day in the city's railroad yards, loaded with articles manufactured here. Locomotives, chewing gum, airplanes, spices, medicines, pencils, monuments, meats, wagons, tires and coffee, caskets, shoes, artificial limbs, candies, optical goods, auto bodies, dry ice, spark plugs, shirts, medicines, cosmetics and toys are among the articles manufactured here.

The city's rapid industrial expansion, it was pointed out, should not be amazing when it is remembered that it is only an overnight haul to 18,000,000 persons, and that 15 main lines of eight railroad systems radiate from here in all directions.

Dr. Singleton Discusses Drive On Illiteracy

An address on "Illiteracy," by Dr. Gordon S. Singleton, of the state department of education, featured a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held Tuesday at Hotel Ansley. The luncheon marked the start of the administration of Joseph S. Shaw, recently elected president.

Predicting that the forthcoming census to be made by the federal government would improve on illiteracy figures of Fulton county and the state of Georgia given by the 1920 census, Dr. Singleton declared that the success of the campaign being inaugurated by the Kiwanis clubs depend upon two things, finances and the location and teaching of the illiterates. "We, that is the state clubs, must raise the funds for helping to reduce illiteracy within this state, and teachers and school officials will have to locate persons needing instruction," said Dr. Singleton.

It has been estimated that it will require $18,000 to undertake this work in Fulton county, said Dr. Singleton, and Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, has agreed to give $6,000 of this amount if the county commissioners and city council will match the donation with contributions of $8,000 each. "This is a liberal offer," Dr. Singleton pointed out, "and it is to be hoped that our city and county governing bodies will raise these amounts."

Will Hammon, state trustee, gave a report of the recent state meeting held at Macon. Henry Heinz, international past president, reviewed circumstances leading up to his interest in the movement to stamp out illiteracy in the state, and urged the members to stand solidly behind the movement.

The Fox theater orchestra, led by its conductor, Enrico Leide, was a feature of the musical program.

Baptist Leaders Gather To Plan Year's Program

An ambitious program for the Baptist church of Georgia in 1930 was outlined Tuesday afternoon at a meeting at the Druid Hills Baptist church of the committee on co-operative activities. This committee was created at the recent session in Gainesville of the Georgia Baptist convention.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, was elected chairman, with Ely Callaway, of LaGrange, as chairman of the laymen's committee.

The church budget of $600,000, authorized at the Gainesville meeting, was unanimously ratified by the committee, which will undertake to raise it. Plans for regional conferences throughout the state to be held during the year were set in motion, with dates and places to be announced later.

Among prominent Baptists throughout the state attending the session were Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, president of the Women's Missionary Union; Dr. O. P. Gilbert, editor-elect of the Christian Index; Dr. A. C. Cree, retiring executive secretary of the convention; James W. Merritt, secretary-elect; Governor Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve bank; Columbus Roberts, of Columbus; Dr. Fred E. Smith, of Augusta; Dr. Charles E. Burt, of Macon; Dr. D. D. Ragsdale, of Macon, secretary of the convention; Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, former president of the convention; and Dr. John E. White, of Savannah, president of the convention.

The following Baptists comprise the committee which met today:

James W. Merritt, Gainesville; Dr. John E. White, Savannah; Dr. John D. Mell, Athens; Dr. O. P. Gilbert, Brunswick; Mrs. W. J. Neel, Cartersville; Frank Hooper, Atlanta; Dr. W. H. Faust, Atlanta; J. P. Nichols, Griffin; Abit Nix, Athens; Eugene Black, Atlanta; Dr. C. E. Burt, Macon; Broadus Willingham, Jr., Macon; Dr. Fred E. Smith, Augusta; Columbus Roberts, Columbus; Ben S. Thompson, Madison; Dr. Ellis Fuller, Atlanta; Dr. L. R. Christie, Atlanta; Rev. Binyan Stephens, Rome; Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, Wetherington; Dr. H. Major, Atlanta; Dr. Walter P. Binns, LaGrange; John R. Hall, Moultrie; Dr. E. J. Forrester, Sparta; Ely Callaway, LaGrange; Dr. Len G. Broughton, Atlanta; Charlie Outlaw, Atlanta; Frank S. Etheridge, Atlanta.

GARBISCHES PLAN GOLF HONEYMOON AT ISLAND CITY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Bound for a golfing honeymoon, E. W. Garbisch, former Army football star, and his bride, the former Bernice Chrysler, sailed from here for Nassau today.

The young couple said they intend to stay in Nassau for two weeks. They came here by train from Palm Beach today after coming to the latter place after their wedding in New York on January 4.

"Our program during our visit to Nassau will not include any social activities," Mrs. Garbisch said. "We're going to play a lot of golf, though."

ATLANTA COLORED BAPTIST MINISTERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Conference (colored) in its annual session Tuesday afternoon elected the following officers:

Rev. L. A. Pinkston, pastor Beulah Baptist church, president; Rev. S. M. Lee, pastor Zion Baptist church, Marietta, first vice president; Rev. H. Lee Jones, student Morehouse college, recording secretary; Rev. S. M. Bryant, pastor Union Baptist church, financial secretary; Rev. J. T. Johnson, pastor Zion Hill Baptist church, treasurer; Rev. C. The next meeting will be at the Ebenezer Baptist church, Rev. A. D. Williams, pastor.

MRS. HURLEY SEATED BY HOOVER AT DINNER

Mrs. Hoover Unable To Attend Vice President's Annual Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The place of Mrs. Herbert Hoover beside the president at the dinner at which the vice president customarily entertains once yearly was given tonight to Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, ranking cabinet lady present in the capital, because the president's wife was kept at the White House by a severe cold.

Mrs. Hurley was the only cabinet lady present, as no members of the cabinet are invited to this annual function. Later in the evening President Hoover followed a custom broken by Calvin Coolidge, by attending a reception given by the Congressional Club for about 500 guests.

Mr. Hoover's program provided that he leave the hotel in time to reach the Congressional Club shortly after 9 p. m. There he was invited to stand at the head of the receiving line.

The time-honored observance provided that the president leave his hat and coat in the office of the resident secretary of the club, on the first floor, before being welcomed by the hostesses, and accompanied to the second floor ballroom in which the guests were received.

ARKWRIGHT CALLED IN UTILITY HEARING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Witnesses for national utility associations will relate tomorrow to the federal trade commission their own story of their publicity activities.

Reopening the hearings which last year brought much testimony dealing with the alleged acquisition by the International Paper and Power of financial interest in a number of newspapers, the commission will hear the defense presented by the joint counsel of national utility associations.

The first day of the utilities associations' hearing before the body will be given to introduction of exhibits by Bernard Wedcock, their counsel, and his outline of the case. He expects to take about two weeks to complete it.

Only one witness has been called so far, spokesmen for the utilities associations said today. Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power Company, and last year's president of the National Electric Light Association, has been asked to appear. It was said that the utilities counsel would attempt merely to clarify the commission's record as to associational activities.

The joint committee represents the National Electric Light Association, in which the Electric Bond and Share Company is prominent; the American Electric Railway Association, and the American Gas Company. Chief among the associations attacked in the hearings before the commission, however, was the electric light group, and it is expected that the testimony offered now will deal largely with this phase of the record.

SLAYER OF MOTHER MUST DIE IN CHAIR, SAYS PARDON BOARD

FRESH as the cream you put in it

Two deliveries a week of this freshly roasted coffee
... at the peak of its exceptionally fine flavor

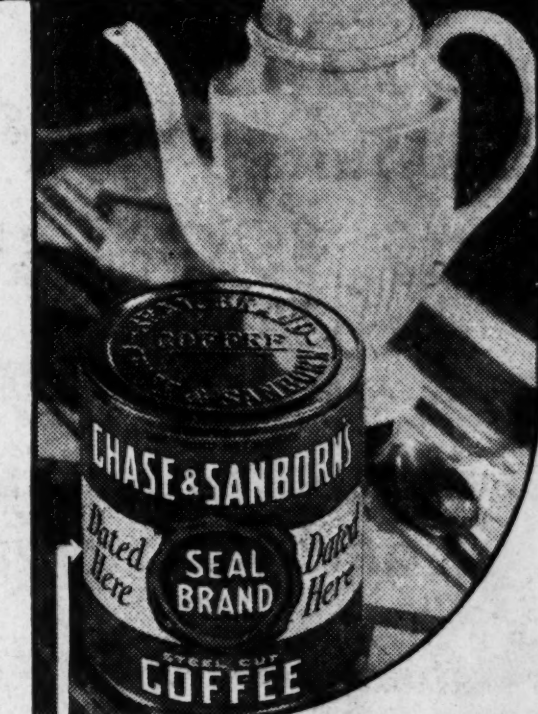

EXPERTLY BLENDED of beans grown in the high altitudes where they develop vitality of flavor... roasted to the golden brown mellow-ness which just suits the American taste... Chase & Sanborn's Coffee has the additional distinction of being always fresh.

In the bright, new green motor trucks of "Standard Brands, Inc., Daily Delivery," which also deliver Fleischmann's Yeast, Chase & Sanborn's Coffee goes to your grocer while it is still crisp and fragrant from the roaster, with its aromatic oils just ready to give up their sparkling, rich strength of flavor.

Storage of Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is eliminated. Each grocer—large or small, centrally located or remote—receives two deliveries a week of this freshly roasted coffee in just the amounts that he can sell before the next delivery. No Chase & Sanborn's Coffee can remain in his store more than one week.

The cans are dated. No other coffee gives you this promise of freshness. When you taste its full-strength, rich, sparkling flavor, you will realize what an unusual experience it is to drink coffee that is really fresh.

Look for the date on the can Never before have you had this assurance that your coffee is fresh from the roaster—full strength, at the peak of its flavor.

CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

TALMADGE APPROVES FARM BOARD ATTACK

State Officers Oppose Movement To Curtail Cotton Acreage.

The recommendation of the federal farm board that southern farmers curtail their cotton acreage will be scored as disappointing in a body created for constructive purposes and generally unsatisfactory, in a caustic article to appear in this week's issue of the Market Bulletin, organ of the state department of agriculture.

"A review of the advice offered by every agricultural worker, professional 'co-operator,' farm paper and everybody else except the real dirt farmer, will show that this is nothing new. This advice has been dished out in large doses for years," it is stated in the article, the advance sheets of which were delivered to the printer Tuesday, in preparation for the issue which is to be mailed Friday.

The article is under the signature of Lehman Anderson, chief clerk of the state department of agriculture, and bears the approval of Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture.

The charge was made that the 16 cents per pound loan granted by the federal farm board in 1929 resulted disastrously to southern farmers. "The board states that they are not guaranteeing that 16 cents per pound will be loaned on cotton next year," the article says. "I hope that it will not. This 16-cent loan resulted most disastrously in 1929."

"Cotton was bringing around 18 cents when this loan was made available and the price immediately dropped to 16 cents and has remained there."

WOMAN HAD $1,000 IN DOPE ON PERSON, U. S. AGENTS SAY

What is thought to be a near record for morphine concealed on any one person was brought to light here Tuesday in a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith when local narcotic agents testified that Vera Campbell was found to have approximately 1,000 grains hidden in various parts of her clothing. At current "bootleg" prices, this is said to be worth $1,000. The defendant was arrested on Harris street and taken to police headquarters where she was searched by the police matron and the large quantity of dope discovered. She was bound over to the federal grand jury under $2,000 bond. A similar bond was assessed on the case of James C. Wimberly who was charged with having purchased from the other defendant.

BOARD TO CONSIDER SLASH IN NUMBER OF BAILIFFS TODAY

The question of cutting the number of Fulton county court bailiffs from 40 to 24 will be considered at a special meeting of the county commission at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the courthouse. Judges of the county courts who are supplied with bailiffs have been invited by the commission to attend the meeting and give their views. Sheriff James I. Lowry also has been asked to attend the session.

In addition to the bailiff matter, the commission will take up the proposed abandonment of a portion of Sweet road.

HARRIS IS IN LINE FOR IMPORTANT POST

Georgia Senator, in Democratic Senate, Would Steer Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(Special.)—If the democrats win the next senate, as the national committee now believes quite probable—due to the terrific tariff and prohibition splits in the republican camp—Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, will be one of the most powerful members of the second most powerful standing committee in the national congress.

Senator Harris is now one of the two ranking democrats on the powerful appropriations committee, and points with pride to all the many billions he has voted for to support the government. He is not only one of the ranking members of the full committee, but is either ranking member of one of the two ranking minority members of nine out of the ten departmental subcommittees, agriculture, interior, state, justice, commerce, labor, treasury, postoffice and war. The subcommittees really frame the greater part of the appropriation bills and this makes him one of the five senate conferees, who are appointed by the vice president to confer with five members of the house to adjust differences between the house and senate on all appropriations.

On account of the importance of the development of rivers and harbors to the people of Georgia, Senator Harris gave up important committee assignments in order to go on the commerce committee, which has charge of such matters. This places him in a splendid position to help develop rivers and harbors.

He is one of the two ranking democrats on immigration committee and has been most active in restricting immigration. He is also one of the six members of the special committee to find the cause and cure for cancer and recommend appropriations for this work. He is author of the resolution creating this committee.

He is also on the democratic steering committee of the senate, which has the assignment of committee places of all democratic senators, also decides on the policy to be pursued by the democrats in the senate.

BURTON IS FINED
$500 IN CITY COURT
ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Possession of 130 gallons of corn whiskey on September 14 cost W. C. Burton $500 when he pleaded guilty Tuesday before Judge Jesse M. Wood in criminal court of Atlanta. Burton was given a suspended sentence of 12 months in addition to the heavy fine. He was charged with possessing the whiskey at 35 Vanira street.

National Biscuit
Company Changes
Department Heads

Effective immediately, National Biscuit Company announces the appointment of Vice President F. Y. Crossmore to take charge of its newly formed operating department, which is made up of the production, engineering and purchasing divisions.

F. K. Montgomery, formerly manager of the purchasing department, has been elected a vice president and will assume charge of the sales department, succeeding Mr. Crossmore.

Sales people at Davison-Paxon Company who set new records in their departments for October, November and December, with their $50 checks presented to them by the management.

On October 1, 1929, the Davison-Paxon Company informed its sales staff that, in addition to their regular salary, commission and bonuses, each person establishing new high individual sales record in his or her department would be given a reward of $50. These high record holders were to be designated "Aces," and the two leading "Aces" were to be given a trip to New York to visit the great R. H. Macy & Co. department store, with which the Davison-Paxon Co. is affiliated.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES HEAR GEN. M'COY

Major General Frank R. McCoy, commander of the fourth corps area, who has visited many parts of the globe on special governmental assignments, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Atlanta Federal Business Association in the postoffice building Tuesday afternoon.

Election of officers was an additional feature of the gathering. John M. Slaton, Jr., regional manager of the veterans' bureau, was re-elected president for the ensuing year. C. E. Caine, postoffice inspector in charge, was named vice president, and V. O. Kinney, deputy collector in charge, re-elected secretary. The executive committee will be composed of Postmaster E. K. Large, chairman; District Attorney Clint W. Hager, Marshal L. H. Crawford, Major C. H. Erskine, U. S. A. Fort McPherson; J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, and Harry O. Mitchell, district manager of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

General McCoy traced the various functions of the federal government from the time of the Spanish-American War up to the present, pointing out the highly successful efforts which have been made to promote greater efficiency in various governmental departments. He declared that there has been a definite trend toward business administration in the past three decades.

PERRY TO SPEAK AT TRAFFIC CLUB
ANNUAL MEETING

James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission, and announced candidate for state governor in the next general election, will address the annual meeting of the Traffic Club of Atlanta, at 6:30 o'clock Friday night, in the Atlanta Athletic Club. He will talk on "Shipper and Carrier Co-operation in Transportation."

The meeting marks the eighth annual session of the Traffic Club and will be featured by election of officers and reading of yearly reports. H. A. Manning is the incumbent president.

Entertainment for the occasion will be provided by the Zephyr University Glee Club under the direction of Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey. J. W. White will serve as toastmaster.

BOARD TO DISCUSS
FIRE PROTECTION
PROBLEM FRIDAY

The perennial question of whether or not the Atlanta fire department will furnish protection to territory outside the limits of the borough of Atlanta will come again before the board of firemasters at a meeting slated for 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, it was announced Tuesday by Councilman William E. Saunders, chairman.

Fulton county has no fire department, but the borough of Atlanta promised protection until January 1 under an agreement with Fulton county commissioners. The time limit has expired and if further protection is to be offered another agreement will be necessary.

TWO ARE DEAD AND FIVE HURT
IN HOTEL FIRE

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Jan. 7.—(P) Two guests of the Wick hotel here were burned to death and five injured early today by fire which spread rapidly through the hotel, and which seriously damaged the three-story hostelry.

Authorities were investigating reports that led to suspicion of incendiarism. Damage was estimated by fire department officials at about $75,000.

Flames blocked the front stairway and entrance of the hotel and guests leaped from windows and slid down ropes to safety. Few and time to dress and many braved blizzard conditions in night clothing. The building had no fire escapes, police said.

The dead are Clarence Parker, foreman in the Kansas City Southern railroad roundhouse in Kansas City, and Ralph Dennis, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Dennis, of Pittsburgh.

None of the injured was hurt seriously.

RAGSDALE APPROVES CITY SEWER SURVEY

Mayor Signs Paper Passed by Council and Aldermanic Board.

Assurance that the survey of sewer needs of Atlanta and its environs with a view of constructing adequate facilities to care for future development was given Tuesday when Mayor I. N. Ragdsdale affixed his signature of approval to a resolution designating the firm of Whitman, Requa and Smith, Baltimore sanitary experts, to the contract.

Council and the aldermanic board Monday passed the paper awarding the contract. Need of the survey was stressed by Mayor Ragdsdale and Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction.

Atlanta school teachers also Tuesday began drawing their checks for salaries for the latter part of December, 1929, following approval of Mayor Ragdsdale of a resolution appropriating $125,000 for that purpose.

The mayor signed all other papers sent to him from the last meeting of the 1929 council and the 1930 council with the exception of several minor sewer measures and allocation of $2,500 as damages to a property owner from erection of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts.

Body Recovered.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 7.—(P)—Twelve days after he was drowned the body of W. H. Adamson was found today on the south side of the St. Johns river. The body was removed from the river by South Jacksonville police and firemen and was identified by persons who had known him before he disappeared Christmas Eve. Adamson had been employed as a watchman on the docks here.

ZACHRY EMPLOYEES GUESTS AT DINNER

Business for 1929 More Than Doubled Volume for Year Before.

Employees of Zachry, exclusive Atlanta dealer in Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing for men, were tendered a banquet Tuesday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club by A. L. Zachry, president of the company, in celebration of the good year the establishment enjoyed.

Mr. Zachry expressed hearty appreciation for the part his employees had played in making the past year the success that it was, and declared that the fine results could not have been realized without every man lending his efforts.

The company started business two years ago at 116 Peachtree street with five employees, and a year ago moved into its present imposing quarters at 87 Peachtree. As an indication of the growth it has made, the store now employs 25 persons.

The volume of business the past year more than doubled that of the first year, Mr. Zachry said, showing that the people of Atlanta appreciate the service and atmosphere at the new store devoted entirely to men's clothing.

Looking forward to a big year in 1930, Mr. Zachry pointed out that this January had started better than last, when the new store was opened. He announced that the new spring goods were arriving and that an early demand for them forecast a good season.

With the extensive construction and industrial program that has been announced in Atlanta for the coming year, Mr. Zachry said that he confidently expected the store's business for 1930 to show at least a 50 per cent increase over the 1929 volume.

BUTLER TOOMBS TO DIRECT VITAL STATISTICS BUREAU

Butler Toombs, for 20 years connected with the United States census bureau, has been employed by the state health department to direct the bureau of vital statistics, it was announced Tuesday.

Mr. Toombs was loaned to the health department in 1926, when the bureau was established. With the census bureau he has been a regional director.

"My first effort," he said, "will be toward educating the people to the necessity of public health records. If we can win the co-operation of the public in keeping a full record of births and deaths we shall have accomplished our purpose."

"The state department of health cannot function properly unless vital statistics, complete and accurate, are obtainable to show them which way to turn."

TOURIST BUREAU
TO DRIVE FOR 300
MEETINGS FOR CITY

Colonel Frederic J. Paxson, president of the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, Tuesday called a meeting of the executive committee with a group of distinguished Atlanta citizens to be held today at 1 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel for the purpose of launching a campaign to bring to Atlanta this year 300 conventions.

Fifty-five already have been secured. The executive committee is composed of Ivan Allen, James F. DeJarnette, Dr. W. L. Gilbert, Frank Reynolds, W. C. Rorer, C. G. Beck, Frank Shuman and W. T. Perkinson.

Those invited to meet with the committee are Mayor Ragsdale, B. Graham West, Walter B. Stewart, G. Everett Millican, J. Allen Couch, Wiley L. Moore, R. P. Pennington, J. E. Berman, George B. Lyle, J. T. Hardy and C. L. Closswood.

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

The "Brunswick Brevities" to be broadcast through WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight will feature the popular Brunswick recording orchestra, the Colonial Club, in a series of medleys composed of popular dance numbers.

The motion picture will be well presented with such movie favorites as "Singing in the Rain" and that outstanding hit of 1929, "The Pagan Love Song," while more recent popular selections will include the "Gypsy Dream Rose," "Lonely Troubadour," "My Fate Is In Your Hands" and "Many Others."

Murray & Scallan, popular vaudeville comedians and Brunswick recording artists, will lend variety to the program with their interpretation of "Sergeant Flagg" and "Sergeant Quirt," a novelty song based on the two characters popularized in the picture, "The Cock-Eyed World." Their second offering will be the nonsense novelty, "Shut the Door, They're Coming Through the Window."

Percy Grainger's "Shepherd's Hey" reflects the spirit of a program composed largely of operatic excerpts which the Chicago Little Symphony orchestra, directed by George Dasch, will broadcast from coast-to-coast over WSB and the N. B. C. system during the Halsey, Stuart program tonight at 8 o'clock.

The "Old Counsellor" financial authority, will show in his weekly talk how essential it is to financial well-being that a periodic analysis should be made of one's investments.

Details of the music program follow:

Introduction to "The Secret of Suzanne" Wolf-Ferrari
Trimmer's "The Secret of Suzanne" Wolf-Ferrari
Schumann's "The Secret of Suzanne" Wolf-Ferrari
Melodies from "Pagliacci" Leoncavallo
Ballets from "The Secret of Suzanne" Wolf-Ferrari
Dance of the Hours, from "La Gioconda" Puccini

The Revelers Quartet, internationally known harmonizing group, lead a parade of radio stars before the microphone during the Palmolive hour to be broadcast from coast-to-coast over WSB and the N. B. C. system tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Gustave Hansen, director, has arranged new and old favorites into a colorful pattern to be interpreted by the ensemble composed of Olive Palmer, soprano; Elizabeth Lennox, contralto; Paul Oliver, tenor; and instrumentalists from the orchestra.

The Revelers are Lewis James and James Melton, tenors; Elliott Shaw, baritone; and Wilfred Glenn, bass.

The following selections will be heard:

Ensemble

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she tells him and calls him a playboy. He tells her that he will never inherit the money his father left, if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells her that, since he has lost one job after another, he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara, and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and start a picture. On the train he meets Anne Ames, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying goodbye in Utah, John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

INSTALLMENT XXVII. A MAN DREAMS.

Carey explained, "You see, Chester's got a sort of reputation, if that's the word for it, of trying out the new girls; he'll lie about it tomorrow anyway, but, hold hard, youngster, I won't let him get away with it. That's why I hung around. To see what really happened. And Armstrong, who's directing your shots, Miss Ames, is a friend of mine; he won't let Chester pull anything... except," watching Kellogg narrowly, "pulling you around a bit when he gets the chance." In the same level voice he continued, "How'd you like being in the picture, Miss Ames?"

Anne, slipping her hand through Kellogg's arm, said, "I'm tired today. The ugly actor winked at John Andrew, lifted his hat, and strode away."

"Did all that really happen?" Anne asked, after Kellogg had slipped the Mercury into high and shot the jade green roadster ahead. "It's so silly."

"Made a fool of myself," John Andrew admitted.

"If, if you hadn't come by four—"

"You'd probably have pulled his nose yourself."

"I wouldn't have known what to do," the girl said, leaning frankly against Kellogg. "I'd have been afraid of what he might have done to me with Consolidated. That is, I suppose I would."

"You didn't answer Carey's question," said John Andrew, swinging the jade green car into a broad, tree-lined street, and driving more slowly. "How do you like acting here?"

Anne said, "I like it. Of course I like it." Defiantly, "What makes you think I don't? It's only that some of the things are rather stupid. Like Chester's having a makeup table on the set, mirror and all. Nobody dares sit in his chair. We rehearse and rehearse and rehearse, and usually don't know why we're doing it. And today, this afternoon, every one, Mr. Armstrong and all of the engineers, listened to the way I was talking, and argued over the playback records all the time."

"Sound pictures are so new that they've got to be on the job," John Andrew informed her.

"It—it almost frightened me. As if something were going wrong."

John Andrew found Anne's hand with his free one. "There's always me to fall back on," he suggested.

"And when the money from the camera, I want to hear all about it, when that's spent on expensive cars and things like that, what will we do? Oh, I didn't mean to say that, John Andrew. I'm tired. Love me."

"I do," John Andrew told her.

"Have you really sold it?"

"Cross my heart," said John Andrew. "You'll probably see it working before very long. Every time you don't hear it click, you can think of me."

"Every cent goes into the bank!" John Andrew protested. "Don't I get any honeymoon, woman?"

Capitulation: "I've got to finish this picture, John Andrew."

"And doing it as Mrs. Kellogg ought to keep our friend Chester at a distance."

"He'd just... work differently." Anne laughed. Sitting beside Kellogg, in the purring Mercury, Chester, Consolidated, seemed very far away. "I'm going to finish what I started. And you'd better finish making the payments on this car, too, with the money you get."

"All paid for, treasurer."

John Andrew, guiding the roadster away from the city, considered suggesting that he sell the Mercury (as he would do in the morning) and that they have a less expensive machine; no need to do that, however, since Anne, save this one concession, would not see him until the coming week, when everything would be settled.

"Do you think the attention they paid me this afternoon meant anything?" Anne asked, when the street lights spaced far apart.

John Andrew remembered Carey's conversation.

"Hard to tell," he said. "But, as a cheering thought, there's always me, you know. You want to make good, pretty badly, little Anne?"

She nodded. "Terribly," she admitted. "I've always worked hard... things have not come easily."

"I did," John Andrew said lightly. "I felt the moment I saw you."

"It's been said that just as few people make a success of marriage as in any other profession," Anne responded more gaily. "Well, that's true. We'll be the famous happy, but married couple of Hollywood."

"Will Rogers beat you to that," John Andrew disagreed. "If you really want to do something that's never been done—"

"Yes?" as Kellogg paused.

"Just marry me."

Anne said, "Silly." And, more softly, "Sweetheart."

In a small voice the girl said at last, "I'd like to have you drive and drive ahead... anywhere. And, at the end of the road... late."

John Andrew said huskily, his arm tight about her, "A good hot dinner."

"You didn't mean that, did you?"

"No," said John Andrew gently. "No, little sweetheart. But it seemed the best thing to say."

"I love you," said John Andrew, as if that answered everything.

"What would you want at the end of the road?" Anne asked peacefully.

"You," said John Andrew.

"What else? Don't you ever dream about things, John Andrew?"

"Well... let me see. First, we'd drive on home, back to San Francisco. Then we'd book passage on the T. K. K. boats. Japan. I've rather wanted to see it again. Plum blossoms in the sun. Temples. Nights with the Three Concubines blazing in the sky. A little inn. A cup of the cold purple wine they bring from China. And... well, like old Koto says, in a story he used to tell me, then their lips separated no more; the night grew old, and they knew it not."

"Who is Koto?" the girl asked.

"My boy," Kellogg said, in the same rapid voice. "Left him in my apartment in New York. You'll love him, Anne; he bosses me around, and he'll give you orders, too. He's uglier than the thunder god, and makes as much noise when he hisses, that's the sign of politeness, it sounds like lightning. What's the matter? Cold?"

"You promised, John Andrew!"

"Promised what? Oh... yes... that's right. I did."

"You're making things up again. You do it so truthfully..."

Anne lowered her voice. "Don't let the money you get from Consolidated turn your head. Dear boy, I love you just the same, money or no money. I've never had any, and—"

Anne laughed. "Who wouldn't? It's fun to dream about. Houses. Places to go. A little Boston on a crimson chair."

John Andrew thought it all over. "I'll say this," he announced finally. "You haven't even asked me how much I expect to make on the transaction."

Mockingly, Anne said, "Millions, John Andrew. Millions."

"How'd you guess?" Kellogg blurted in surprise. "Somebody tell you?"

"I knew you'd only sell on a royalty basis, and dream your profits, although I really hoped you'd take the actual money. I asked you before if you ever dreamed about things; you always do."

"Always," he said.

It was another mile before he spoke again. "You're a rotten guesser. We sold the Blake-Kellogg patent for twenty-five thousand. Half's mine."

"And now you want to celebrate, don't you?" Anne teased. "All right, John Andrew; tonight you may be as extravagant as you like. I'll order everything I've ever heard about for dinner... and you can help me if I neglect anything... and then tomorrow you must make believe you never made the money at all, and go back to work. Tonight we can play that you're a... what do they call it in the papers?... a young scion of wealth."

REHEARSALS FOR 'FOLLIES OF 1930' START JANUARY 27

Delegates Elected To Attend Jacksonville, Fla., Conference

The election of Mesdames De Sales Harrison and Lawrence Willet as delegates to attend the conference of region 4 of the Junior League of America, meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., February 18, 19 and 20, and the announcement that rehearsals for the Junior League Follies of 1930 begin January 27, were the important features resulting from the meeting of the Atlanta branch held yesterday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club. Wallace Milam, of New York city, who has been selected as director for the Follies, arrives in Atlanta the day the rehearsals start, and will immediately begin to select the cast for one of the most brilliant professional productions the local league has ever undertaken. One of the most interesting points connected with the regional conference in Jacksonville will be the arts and interests exhibits to be held in the ballroom of the Carling hotel Wednesday evening, February 19. It is expected that Miss Mary Hand, national chairman of arts and interests committee, will attend the conference. The exhibits will be divided into classes, including: Arts and crafts, which consists of designs for dress material, wall paper designs, jewelry designs, needlework, etc.; fine arts, which consists of black and white sketching, watercolors, etc.; welfare work, which consists of models and plans for welfare projects; photographs of gardens and numerous other divisions. All of the exhibits will be the work of members of the 26 leagues in section 4. Miss Margaret Nelson, past president of the Atlanta league, was elected to head the motor corps to be formed to meet the delegates passing through Atlanta en route to the conference.

Jacksonville judges will be chosen to award prizes in the different classes and the prize winning exhibits will be entered in the national arts and interests exhibit to be held in April in New York city during the national conference. Mrs. Rhoades Haverty is chairman of arts and interests committee for the Atlanta Junior League and Mrs. Solace Mitchell is chairman of this committee for the Jacksonville league.

Mrs. John Knox, president, presided over the meeting and called for reports, one of which was given by Miss Palmer Dallis, chairman of program advertisement for the Follies, who stated that $4,500 had been collected from soliciting advertisements thus far. Reports were made by Mrs. Edward K. Van Winkle, Jr., on provisional membership courses; Mrs. Wylie Ballard made a report on the Chicago play conference, which she attended as a delegate; Miss Margaret McIntosh reported on the Junior League tea room; Mrs. Walter Wellborn, as general chairman of the Follies, gave her report, and Mrs. Beverly DuBose reported on the Henrietta Eggleston Memorial hospital, of which she is chairman, and which is the charity sponsored by the league.

Dinner-Dance Planned At the Biltmore.

The mid-weekly dinner-dance at the Biltmore hotel will be held this evening and will assemble a large number of the younger social set. The dance will be held in the Georgian ballroom. While the Wednesday dinner-dance at the Biltmore is largely patronized by the younger contingent of society a growing number of the older people are forming the habit of deferring dinner until this occasion, and several groups of Atlanta's more sedate social leaders will participate in the evening's festivities. Music for the dance is furnished by the Biltmoreans.

Piano School Presents Pupils.

The Mayer Piano school will present Misses Charlotte French, Mary Paul Fleming, Ethel Saul, Evelyn Wheat, Sarah Glustrom and Irving Lipshitz and Frazer Moore in a piano recital at the Candler Piano Company's rooms, 27 Pryor street, N. E., Thursday at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited.

Bell-White Wedding Plans Are of Interest

The wedding of Miss Martha Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Bell, to Harold Somerset White, of Cristobal, Canal Zone, Panama, formerly of Pensacola, Fla., will be an event of Tuesday evening, January 14, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Ponce de Leon avenue. Dr. R. L. Russell, of the Druid Hills Methodist church, will be the officiating minister.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Benjamin Franklin Bell, J. Frank Bell, brother of the bride, will be the best man. The maid of honor will be Miss Margaret MacIntyre and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. Parks Hunt and Mrs. Charles Lanier, of Americus. Little Frank Bell Jernigan will be the ring-bearer and the train-bearers will be Allen Jernigan, Jr., and Jimmy Jernigan. An informal reception will be held following the wedding. The bride and bridegroom will leave immediately afterward on a wedding journey to Cuba, Jamaica and other points of interest before going to Panama to make their future home.

A number of parties are being planned in compliment to this charming bride and bridegroom-elect. Miss Martha Lewis will entertain at a luncheon today honoring Miss Bell. Thursday afternoon Mrs. John Wright Carswell will entertain at an informal bridge-tee at her home on Myrtle street honoring Miss Bell. Friday evening Mrs. Parks Hunt will honor Miss Bell at a bridge-tee. Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Neal will honor Miss Bell and Mr. White at a party at their home on Golf drive.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker will honor Miss Bell and Mr. White Sunday, January 12, at a family dinner. Sunday evening, January 12, Mrs. J. D. Bell will entertain at a family party. Monday evening, January 13, Miss Margaret MacIntyre will entertain at a party at her home on Fourteenth street following the rehearsal. Tuesday Mrs. Hugh Nunnally entertained at a bridge-luncheon at her home on Peachtree road honoring Miss Bell.

Mrs. Louis Brooke To Compliment Miss Rowbotham

Mrs. Louis Brooke entertains at a bridge-luncheon Thursday, January 9, at her home on Andrews drive in compliment to Miss Ruth Rowbotham, member of the Debutante Club of 1929-30. Among the attractive visiting belles will be Miss Marjorie Collier, of Glen Ridge, N. J., who arrives Thursday to visit Miss Rowbotham. They were classmates and intimate friends at Lasell seminary in Auburndale, Mass.

Mrs. Brooke's guests will be Miss Rowbotham, Miss Collier, Misses Adair McCarty, Sally Pearson, Augusta Porter, Frances Howard, Sara Law Vinita Anderson, Adeline Winston, Frances Spalding, Lena Knox and Leila Venable Mason.

Mrs. Russell Reynolds Is Honored at Party.

Mrs. W. K. Blackman was hostess yesterday at an informal luncheon at her home on Andrews drive, honoring her guest, Mrs. Russell Reynolds, of New York, who was before her marriage last summer Miss Virginia Carter. The guests included a few close friends of the honor guest, who were Misses Ruth Kline, Jane Dillon, Kathleen Pierson, Virginia Smith, Helen Cody, Mary Ellis, Mrs. George Rosser and Mrs. Arthur LeCraw.

Alliance Francaise To Meet Tomorrow.

The Alliance Francaise meets tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the new home of Mrs. Harry M. Atkinson, second vice president of the alliance, on Habersham way. Mrs. John M. Slaton, the first vice president, will preside. Charles Lordinans will be the speaker of the occasion. "L'Academie Francaise et l'Academie Goncourt" being the subject of his lecture. Miss Frances Woodberry, of Woodberry hall, will sing a group of songs from French composers, after which there will be the usual half-hour of French conversation.

Miss Anderson To Make Debut

Miss Vinita Anderson, beautiful debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Anderson, of Nelson, Ga., who will be introduced formally to Atlanta society this evening at a brilliant dinner-dance at the Biltmore hotel. Miss Anderson is a popular member of Atlanta's 1929-30 Debutante Club, having enjoyed wide popularity during the winter in this city as the guest of Miss Boyce Loke, who is also an admired member of this season's Debutante Club. Miss Anderson is a representative of aristocratic Georgia families and is numbered among the belles and beauties of the south. The above exquisite photograph of Miss Anderson was made last summer while she was in Paris where she spent sometime before visiting other European cities.

Mrs. Walter Colquitt To Assume Leadership of Sheltering Arms

Mrs. Walter Colquitt will be installed as the newly elected president of the Sheltering Arms Association Thursday morning, January 9, at a meeting to be held at the association's headquarters, 214 Baker street, at 10:30 o'clock. Other officers to be installed at this meeting are: Mrs. Glenville Giddings, first vice president; Mrs. Marion Harper, second vice president; Mrs. C. C. Case, treasurer; Mrs. R. C. De Saussure, recording secretary; Mrs. William H. Kiser, Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. E. Dallis, treasurer of membership dues; Mrs. J. B. Keough, chairman of clinic. Mrs. Colquitt succeeds Mrs. Cam D. Dorsey as president of this splendid organization that supports two day nurseries for Atlanta's needy children. Under Mrs. Dorsey's administration the working program sponsored by the association has broadened, dental clinics being held each week and a medical clinic maintained for both nurseries. Prominent Atlanta doctors have given freely of their time and energy at both the medical and dental clinics. Mrs. Colquitt is well equipped to assume the leadership of this worthy charitable organization, having served as first vice president and also held several valuable chairmanships in the association. The two day nurseries maintained by the association are Osgood Sanders nursery, located at 214 Baker street, and the Cornelia Moore, located at 691 Garibaldi street. The newly elected officers of the Osgood Sanders nursery will be installed at the meeting Tuesday, January 14, and include: Mrs. Victor Smith, chairman; Mrs. Owen Perry, vice chairman; Mrs. Raymond Cole, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Dixon, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary Reynolds, recording secretary. The newly elected officers of the Cornelia Moore nursery are Mrs. Robert Troutman, chairman, and Mrs. Henry Tompkins, treasurer.

Druid Hills Rose Garden Plans Are Being Forwarded by Club

Activities for the cultivation of the Druid Hills rose garden, the major project of the Druid Hills Garden Club, are being forwarded by members of the club, of which Mrs. Harold Coolidge is president. Climbing roses are being planted about the trellises, garden seats constructed and preparations being forwarded for spring planting. The garden, which extends between North and South Ponce de Leon avenues from Lullwater to Oakdale roads, was granted as a community plot by the city to the club. Although the garden was planned more than a year and a half ago no active work was done before last spring. Present proposals indicate that the garden will be one of the most beautiful of the city. Definite arrangements for the maintenance of the garden will be perfect. At a meeting of the club Thursday morning, January 9, at the home of Mrs. George West, 2149 Ponce de Leon avenue, Mrs. Harold Coolidge, president, presiding, Mrs. H. Clark, well-known horticulturist, will address the group on "Preparing the Garden for the Coming Spring." Mr. Clark, who is manager of a well-known seed store, will furnish practical information which can be readily and helpfully applied. A nominating committee will be appointed at this time. The Druid Hills Garden Club, which was organized several years ago, is a member of the Garden Club of Georgia. The purpose of the organization is to promote garden activities in the city and the section. A flower show and plant sale are annual fall activities of the club. Officers of the organization are: Mrs. Harold Coolidge, president; Mrs. Edwin Coolidge, vice president; Mrs. Arthur Almond, secretary; Mrs. Walter Candler, treasurer and Mrs. Arthur Tufts, corresponding secretary.

Perry-Walker

Bridal Party Is Honored

Mrs. Floyd Northcutt was hostess at a buffet supper last evening at her home on Montgomery Perry drive, prior to the wedding rehearsal of Miss Lydia Perry and Dr. E. Y. Walker, whose marriage takes place this evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church. The guests included Miss Perry, Miss Betty Mooley, Miss Martha McCrory, Mr. and Mrs. Z. V. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ballard, of Eatonton; Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley, Dr. and Mrs. Roger W. Dickson, Dr. and Mrs. Russell B. Burke, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Dillard, of Columbus; Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Upshaw, Mr. and Mrs. E. Y. Walker, of Eatonton; Edwin Armstrong, Dr. Henry Poer, Wingfield Walker, Erwin Perry, Harry Johnson and Mrs. Lalla Davis Perry.

Edward Kane

Sings Here Today For Music Club

Edward A. Kane, of Atlanta, winner of the 1929 radio audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation, will sing at the regular Wednesday morning musical of the Atlanta Music Club which is to be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Wesley Memorial church, according to an announcement by Mrs. Wilmer Moore, president. Mr. Kane, who has been in New York and eastern cities, gives today his first concert in Atlanta since receiving the Atwater Kent award. Mr. Kane has been actively identified with musical circles of the city. He has been soloist at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, St. Mark's Methodist church, and has traveled in Europe with the Emory Glee Club. He is a graduate of Emory University. His appearance here today is of interest to a wide circle of friends. Miss Margaret Hecht is chairman for the day. Members are requested to show their membership cards at the door. Non-members will be admitted for 50 cents.

'HER UNBORN CHILD' IS STRONG PARABLE AGAINST HYPOCRISY

There can be no question that "Her Unborn Child," talking picture witnessed at a preview Tuesday morning, preaches a powerful sermon in a most artistic manner. Neither can there be question that the picture is good entertainment, if you favor a good modicum of thought-provoking sentiment in your amusement program.

It is a story dealing with a situation old as humanity, yet brought more strongly to the consciousness of society in this modern era of lessened restraint upon youth. It is a situation inevitable in many cases where, as the doctor of the picture says, "two young people love so much they forget everything else." It preaches mightily against hypocrisy and the cowardliness of people whose lives are ruled solely by the fear of what "they" will say. The very fact that it has been made and that it can be shown speaks wonderfully of the progress toward decent honesty in this modern world of ours has achieved.

It will be shown next week at the Rialto. —RALPH T. JONES.

KEEPERS OF BEES ASKED TO ASSIST NATIONAL CENSUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—An appeal to all owners of bees to assist the census-taker in taking a country-wide bee census is being made by J. I. Hambleton, in charge of the bee-culture division of the department of agriculture.

City bees as well as country bees, and bees who live in the country but whose owners live in the city, are to be counted this 1930 decennial census. City-owned bees will be listed as "livestock not on farms and ranges," by consent of the bureau of the census.

This addition to the census was hailed by Hambleton as "an important victory" for the bee-keeping industry in a field where everybody is trying to get questions asked. He declared that never before in history has agriculture had such an opportunity to take stock of itself, and that if reliable figures are not furnished in 1930, the industry will have to wait another 10 years without knowing how many bees are busy, and how much money is produced.

HANCOCK FAMILY CARRIED TO SAFETY AS HOME IS BURNED

SPARTA, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special).—Five of unknown origin completely destroyed the home of Edward Johnson, well known Hancock county lumberman, last night and the occupants barely escaped with their lives. The timbers in a portion of the house were falling in when the occupants awakened and the last of the children got out of the building just as the entire roof collapsed.

At the time of the fire Mr. Johnson's mother-in-law, Mrs. Lula Reynolds, and several children were in the house, besides his own family, and some of them had to be carried out of the burning building. No insurance was carried and the house and contents will be a total loss.

TWO STARS LOSING REAL SELVES IN "COCK-EYED WORLD"

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe have become so well known and popular by their "Cock-Eyed World" cognomen that already they are being referred to as "Victor McFlagg" and "Edmund Quirt."

Everyone knows them as a couple of leathernecks "Don Juans," always falling in love with a new dame somewhere and fighting one another over possession of her. The Fox Movietone "The Cock-Eyed World," is based on the story by the same name written by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, forgettable co-authors of "What Price Glory." The trap had been sprung and he had been sure that he had caught Chatterer. That is, there was nothing in it but the nuts he had used for bait. The trap had been sprung and he had been sure that he had caught Chatterer. That is, there was nothing in it but the nuts he had used for bait.

"I don't know how that littleascal sprung that trap without being caught," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I'll try it again. He did it once, but I don't believe he can do it twice. He must have done it by accident."

So Farmer Brown's Boy once more set the boxtrap very carefully. As before, he baited it with nuts. He took great pains with the setting of it. You see, he meant to catch Chatterer if it were possible. The next morning when he looked at it, it was sprung again. As before, there was no one in it.

"You little scamp!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "It must be that you climb up on this trap and so trip the trigger. I've got to think of some way of fixing it so that you can't do that."

Farmer Brown's Boy took the trap away and worked over it. That afternoon, when he brought it back to set it, he had fixed it so that that little stick that Chatterer had touched was protected. Chatterer couldn't touch it now. "Now," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "we'll see if you'll spring this trap this time."

FIRST ERLANGER SOUND PICTURE PROGRAM PLEASES

"Hunting Tigers in India" is attracting the most favorable criticisms ever recorded for an adventure picture from newspapers everywhere it has been shown. Now playing at the Erlanger theater, equipped for sound reproduction unsurpassed anywhere in the country, it made a most profound impression on its premiere presentation Monday night. It is a voice and camera chronicle of a dangerous expedition, and its moments of tenseness arise out of real hazards.

For sheer action and thrills alone, "Hunting Tigers in India" is well worth witnessing, but the Erlanger management decided to give the public a full measure of value on its initial venture in talking picture entertainment, so we have also the thrilling recital of the epoch-making trip, "Around the World via Graf Zeppelin." Two performances will be given daily throughout the week, at 2:45 and 8:30 o'clock. Tickets for the night performance are reserved, and may be had at the box office and at Phillips & Crew Piano Company.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

CHATTERER'S LITTLE JOKE.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A harmless joke played now and then is good for squirrels and for men. —Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Farmer Brown's Boy was both surprised and disappointed when he found that there was nothing in the trap he had set for Chatterer the Red Squirrel. That is, there was nothing in it but the nuts he had used for bait. The trap had been sprung and he had been sure that he had caught Chatterer. That is, there was nothing in it but the nuts he had used for bait.

"I don't know how that littleascal sprung that trap without being caught," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I'll try it again. He did it once, but I don't believe he can do it twice. He must have done it by accident."

So Farmer Brown's Boy once more set the boxtrap very carefully. As before, he baited it with nuts. He took great pains with the setting of it. You see, he meant to catch Chatterer if it were possible. The next morning when he looked at it, it was sprung again. As before, there was no one in it.

"You little scamp!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "It must be that you climb up on this trap and so trip the trigger. I've got to think of some way of fixing it so that you can't do that."

Farmer Brown's Boy took the trap away and worked over it. That afternoon, when he brought it back to set it, he had fixed it so that that little stick that Chatterer had touched was protected. Chatterer couldn't touch it now. "Now," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "we'll see if you'll spring this trap this time."

"He'll find something this time," muttered Chatterer.

as he had sprung it before. Chatterer sat down in front of that trap and studied it for a few minutes. Then he began to chuckle. If he couldn't spring that trap he could at least see to it that Farmer Brown's Boy should find something in it.

Chatterer picked up a bare corn-cob, one from which he had taken all the corn. He pushed it into the trap. Then he did the same thing with another. He hunted out a third and pushed that in. The fourth one was extra long. When he pushed that in it touched the trigger of the trap. Down came the door! It gave Chatterer a fright. Indeed, it came very near hitting him on the head. He jumped back just in time. When he recovered from his fright and once more looked at the trap, he chuckled more than ever.

"He'll find something this time," muttered Chatterer. "Farmer Brown's Boy will find something this time. It won't be what he thinks it is and I guess he'll be some surprised."

In this Chatterer was not disappointed. It was only a little later that Farmer Brown's Boy came in. He looked at once at the trap. Of course, he saw at once that the trap was sprung. He chuckled aloud.

"That's the time I fooled you, old fellow!" said he. "As they say in some places, I outsmarted you. You've had the joke on me several times, but now I've got it on you."

He went over and picked up the trap. It was then that he discovered that the door was not quite down. There was the end of a corn-cob in the way. The instant he saw that bit of corn-cob he knew that once more the joke was on him after all. He opened the trap. There lay the four corn-cobs. Farmer Brown's Boy gave vent to a little whistle of surprise. Then he just had to laugh. He was enjoying Chatterer's little joke quite as much as was Chatterer himself.

GEORGE MCCORKLE, VETERAN OF GRAY, DIES AT THOMAS

THOMSON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(Special).—George P. McCorkle, 83, Confederate veteran and, until forced to retire on account of failing health, engaged in the mercantile business here, died at his home last night. He was a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his wife, a son, E. E. McCorkle, of South Carolina, and by several grandchildren. Funeral services will be conducted at the residence Wednesday morning by Rev. Mr. Byrd, pastor of the Methodist church. Interment will take place in the old cemetery.

Down came the door! It gave Chatterer a fright. Indeed, it came very near hitting him on the head. He jumped back just in time. When he recovered from his fright and once more looked at the trap, he chuckled more than ever.

"He'll find something this time," muttered Chatterer.

as he had sprung it before. Chatterer sat down in front of that trap and studied it for a few minutes. Then he began to chuckle. If he couldn't spring that trap he could at least see to it that Farmer Brown's Boy should find something in it.

Chatterer picked up a bare corn-cob, one from which he had taken all the corn. He pushed it into the trap. Then he did the same thing with another. He hunted out a third and pushed that in. The fourth one was extra long. When he pushed that in it touched the trigger of the trap. Down came the door! It gave Chatterer a fright. Indeed, it came very near hitting him on the head. Don't envy teeth like these —

Yours, too, can look attractive —this modern dentifrice is winning millions

YOU have your favorite dentifrice —but lay it aside for one month while you try this new one which has won more than a million users in the last four years.

Listerine Tooth Paste is its name—made by the makers of Listerine. There can be no question of its quality.

Note how quickly it removes tartar and discoloration from dull, off-color teeth. Note how their natural whiteness becomes apparent. See how it makes them glisten—a brilliant luster such as nature intended.

Observe how it penetrates tiny between-the-teeth crevices and washes out matter that causes decay.

And then—note the wonderful, fresh, clean feeling it imparts to the mouth, that sense of invigoration you associate with Listerine itself. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Yes—Only 25¢ the large tube
Buy what you want with what you save

You can, for instance, get a toaster with that $3.00 you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste. Its cost (25¢ a large tube) is about half of that of the ordinary dentifrice. And millions, both men and women, having proved that it cleans teeth whiter, are glad to take advantage of this economy.

SPILLER, DOBBS WILL INSPECT DOUGLAS TODAY

Bainbridge Offers Club Camp for Spring Work in March.

By Ralph McGill.
Staff Correspondent.
DOUGLAS, Ga., Jan. 7.—Johnny Spiller and R. J. Dobbs, manager and business manager, respectively, of the Atlanta baseball club, will inspect Douglas Wednesday morning as a prospective site for the training camp of the 1930 Atlanta team.

Dobbs arrived late tonight, several hours after the Cracker business manager who made a record trip from Atlanta to Douglas.

Another offer.
The training camp situation was further complicated today when Bainbridge, Ga., made a determined bid for the Crackers. Bainbridge offered anything the Crackers might want. When the club officials arrived here today they found a telegram from the committee at Bainbridge declaring that their city was much superior to Douglas in every respect and urged that the Crackers leave immediately and come over and accept their offer.

The Douglas committee smiled tolerantly. They have quite a lot to offer. Douglas has a baseball team each year in the Tobacco Belt league and this team would afford the Crackers training opposition. The baseball park here offers dressing room facilities for 70 men and is modern in every respect.

Officials silent.
The Crackers officials would not commit themselves at all tonight, reserving their opinion until after an inspection and consultation on Wednesday before the bird hunt which is scheduled for some time during the day.

The committee which met the Atlanta delegation tonight was composed of J. M. Thrash, president of the junior college here, and Fred Ricketson, newspaperman.

"We are willing to give them whatever they want," I am sure," said Ricketson. "We have not gone into the proposition at all but are prepared to offer every inducement within our means to get the club here."

The town would like to have them.
One of the unofficial members of the welcoming committee was Monte Mitchell, former Memphis pitcher and last year with Macon. He is to serve as one of the guides in the hunt scheduled for Wednesday.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn baseball club, is scheduled to arrive here Wednesday from Dover, N. H., to join in the hunt. From here the party will go to Dover Hall where some agreement regarding an alignment with Brooklyn is expected to be reached.

Florida Books 10 Grid Games

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP) The University of Florida's football schedule for 1930 became officially complete here today with the announcement from Director of Athletics Charles W. Bachman that Southern college would fill the opening date on the Gator schedule.

Florida's main emphasis is an inter-collegiate contest, that with the University of Chicago on October 18.

who acted as referee for the semi-final bout. Strib also took Jack out to the Federal prison. The center panel shows part of the crowd that turned out to greet the Man Mauler when he arrived Tuesday morning at the Peachtree station. At the right Commander T. B. Hermes, of the local legion post, is welcoming Dempsey to Atlanta. Major Trammell Scott is at Dempsey's left. Photos by J. T. Holloway, staff Constitution photographer.

JACK DEMPSEY COUNTS 'FARMER' OUT IN FIRST

Packed House Sees Fight; Mauler Swarmed by Fans Here.

By Ed Danforth.
As the bell started the first round, Jack Dempsey, referee, danced away to the ropes.

Ted Goodrich, of the home club, and Farmer Joe Cooper, of West York, Ill., addressed each other with tentative gloves.

Five thousand people settled back in those cruel Auditorium seats that collapse by sections rather than singly, to feast their eyes on the Manassa Mauler in motion as third—and only—man in the ring.

A QUICK FINISH.
In less than a minute Goodrich put his whole soul into a left jab that connected with Cooper's chin. Farmer Joe at once went into executive position with his arms against the ropes.

He was erect. He would have fallen but his legs were paralyzed and the knees would not buckle.

Goodrich, dazed at what had happened, dropped his guard as if fascinated by his own handiwork. For a few seconds the tableau was held. Ted could have laid Farmer Joe in a deep furrow then and there.

Presently they renewed the engagement. And Ted, alive to the goody condition of his opponent, took careful aim on the same Illinois chin and fired a right hand. Cooper hit the canvas with a thud.

JACK GIVES COUNT.

Jack Dempsey performed a feat in simple arithmetic and the show was over.

The five thousand men, women and children who had waited all evening for Jack to do his act, began crowding for the exits chattering.

"Four thousand dollars for two minutes' work," they said laughingly. "You wouldn't like to make it more, would you?"

And the minute and forty-four seconds of refereeing he did did not represent the day's work. Not by 2,000 signatures and 4,000 hands from $10,000. The crowd was at once a tribute to the popularity of Dempsey and the courage of the American Legion post.

KNOCKED OUT.

That Ted Goodrich cut short the refereeing act was no fault of Ted's. Nor of Farmer Joe's act for that. He was knocked glassy-eyed by that first left-hand punch and probably does not remember the lethal right that closed him out.

Naturally, Broadway Johnny Cox, who operates Cooper, was not disappointed over his loss of his protegee. "They had beaten Goodrich twice before, I hear, and had no idea of what they were doing."

Goodrich naturally looked and felt good before and after, respectively. During the preliminaries Jack Dempsey sat in a box with Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence Stribling, Jr., Walter T. Candier and Frank Adair. He saw but little of the prelims—and the boys were hustling to make a good showing, too. Dempsey was mobbed by young and old and the middle-aged for autographs.

During the evening he wrote his name on business cards, newspapers, checks, a question of whether he would return to the ring, saying that "anything might materialize. If these birds don't get to mixing it up a little more lively, why, I may have a pot shot at one or two of them yet."

"The boys are ducking the issue," he said. "A champion has to meet and beat them all or he shouldn't be champion. The heavyweights are spotting their matches instead of settling their way through the division."

Speedy Rell Kayoes Left-Handed Hurler

Johnny Gets Bump on Noggin During Spiller's Fast Trip to Douglas.

By Ralph McGill.
Staff Correspondent.
DOUGLAS, Ga., Jan. 7.—Mister Rell J. Spiller is not a "Forty Niner." Oh, no indeed. He is a "Seventy Niner," because it was at those figures that he kept his automobile on the way down to see what can be done about killing a mess of birds, finding a training camp for the 1930 Crackers and conferring with your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Robins.

When the Spiller automobile drew up in front of the Doucett hotel the obliging attendants unloaded the back end. They drew therefrom three shotguns, hunting coats, suitcases and a former left-handed pitcher named Johnny Suggs. Mr. Suggs had been quiet for a long time and despite the fact that this was very unusual, indeed, for a left-hander, no one had thought the least of the matter. Once Mr. Spiller looked back and declared that the left-handed Mr. Suggs was asleep.

BUMP DOES IT.
It developed that at a time when Mr. Spiller was proving the fact that he was a "seventy-niner" he had gone over a bridge. The bump had tossed Mr. Suggs into one of the cross beams of the car in a very violent fashion, indeed. He was fully recovered by the time they reached the hotel and the full damage seems to be a knot on his noggin. Mr. Spiller laughed heartily. "I did that once when my wife was riding with me," he said, "and I had to stop the car. Johnny took it much more calmly."

Quitting Atlanta at a few minutes after 11 o'clock, the Spiller automobile arrived in Douglas, Ga., in five hours, which amazed the people of Douglas who were out to meet the roads of Georgia as he did. The automobile was loaded with a lot of birds, a lot of wing to escape the flying car. Stories that Mr. Rell Spiller is reckless are entirely unfounded. He is simply a "seventy-niner" and riding with a "seventy-niner" is not reckless at all. It is something like playing shortstop. One gets by or one doesn't.

RELL PUZZLED.
"I do not understand why people think I drive too fast," mused Mr. Rell J. Spiller, as he purred along with his foot very heavy indeed. "This is my wife's car I am driving today and when I backed it out of the garage this morning she said, 'Well, good-bye car.' I felt a little hurt, because I have never lost a car yet."

This section of Georgia is the boyhood stamping ground of the Cracker business manager. He walked over all the paths as a boy and he knows the roads of Georgia as he does. Just by way of diversion he would dart off the pavement now and then and take to a dirt road which would lead him to a "seventy-niner" man and boy, he traveled the roads of this section.

NOT THIS TIME.
"I could drive these roads asleep," he said, "and I could demonstrate, if you care to see me do so."

Your correspondent disclaimed any interest in any such demonstration. Mr. Spiller pointed out the main points of interest as his car moved along.

It seems that he is a native of Roberts, Ga., and he called out the main sights of the city as he went through. "I remember that boy's father," he said; "his name was Harry." By that time it was too late to show any more points of interest. Roberts was fading into the distance.

A QUICK TRIP.

Douglas was reached while it was yet light and the Cracker representatives were upstairs in the hotel rooms being entertained by the committee when the white way lights came on. I do not mean to give the impression that the Cracker official is one who takes reckless chances. He is by no means reckless. He has a heavy foot, but so far no one has shown up more adept at the wheel. He will get there.

Barnard Flies.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 7. (AP) E. S. Barnard, American baseball league proxy, made his first sky-flight today as a passenger of the airship Vigilant.

Tom Jones, the smiling blond from Clarksville, Ga., can face the next football season with complacency. He will have his greatest year. He will play 60 minutes of every game without injury.

For Tom not only played a slashing, spectacular game in the all-star contest New Year's Day, but he has just come safely through two hunting experiences, they say, without serious damage.

It was last week that a shotgun in the large hands of Gordon C. (Coot) Watkins went off without a word of warning, so to speak, and the charge fanned Tom's leg. Then Saturday he took part of a bird load in the leg while hunting near the home of Earl Dunlap in Sumter, S. C.

Tom is moving around getting an education with no discomfort from his experiences. He has about decided to close his own hunting season, however.

WHY NOT FIGHT AGAIN.

One of the utterances of William Harrison Dempsey in Atlanta stands out as a potent remark for two reasons.

Jack said in answer to a question of whether he would fight again:

"If the boys now fighting do not mix it up more and quit so much stalling, I may take a shot at one or two of them for luck."

That remark is worthy of notice because (1) it clinches the title of the world's greatest publicity agent for Jack himself and (2) it bares a state of affairs in heavyweight pugilism that makes a comeback by Dempsey not such a rapid dream, after all.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION.

Ever since that rainy night in Philadelphia, while the country was still gasping from Jack's defeat at Tunney's hands, the question of Dempsey's return to the ring has been constantly before fistiana.

It was sounded like an alarm gong ever and anon before the second Tunney engagement at Soldier's field and played its part in the great symphonic ballyhoo that built up the biggest boxing gate in history.

And still the tocsin sounds. It has been winded more often since the heavyweight division has fallen into the blind staggers and general distemper.

No one individual has done more to keep the public guessing than Jack himself. One week he flatly denies he ever will draw on gloves again, save with full evening dress or in cold weather. The next week he drops a hint, broad or subtle as the occasion demands, that is enough to inspire, well, articles like this one.

Dempsey is his own best press agent.

And no one doubts but that any one of the present day crop of heavyweights would be pie for Old Man Jack, legs or no legs.

HUNTING.

R. J. Spiller, with Johnny Suggs and Ralph McGill as a body guard, left yesterday for Douglas, Ga., where they will hunt birds and a training site.

Then they will meet Manager Johnny Dobbs and will go on to Dover Hall as guests of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to hunt ducks, deer and outlanders.

From both these points should come reports of shotguns and signatures and the Crackers for 1930 should be just about complete when the firing and hiring subsides. That is, if every turn out all right and the strings are not tied too tightly around cherished players here and there.

Fans Rush Dempsey During Visit to City

Ex-Champion Spends Busy Day Here, Seeing Sights of City—Inspects Pen.

By Ed Danforth.

Jack Dempsey blew into the city yesterday like a bustling breeze from eastward and hurried out again, leaving a city refreshed.

The thousands who saw him moving about downtown trailed by a following more representative even than the one that trailed "The Champion" in Charles Dana Gibson's masterly pen-and-ink sketch of 20 years ago, and the thousands who saw him referee a bout at the auditorium were stimulated by having seen him.

And thousands who heard him over the radio—and the privileged group of Boy Scouts with whom he fraternized—had another experience to mention proudly.

The magnetic American, more popular as the "ex"-champion than he was as the scowling titleholder, arrived at Brookwood station on the Birmingham Special and stepped off into the midst of a jostling throng.

Two boys with school books open pressed in close to Dempsey. They wanted autographs. The man stopped and scratched his name with a stroke of a pencil, making historic volumes out of dull textbooks.

CHARACTERISTIC.
That act, characteristic of the man, is the keynote, the cause of his vast popular appeal. He likes people; therefore people like him. Crowds that seem to be embarrassed or annoyed by other so-called celebrities are companionable to Jack Dempsey.

So the ex-champion was packed into an automobile and hurried to the city hall preceded by a motorcade escorted by Lieutenant Jack Malcolm to accompany Dempsey all day. There Mayor Ragsdale, worn from the attacking waves of councilmen fighting for chairmanships of important committees, came out and warmed in Dempsey's smile.

Then Dempsey, joined now by W. L. (Young) Stribling, a fellow ring craftsman; Tubby Walton, the purveyor of powerful food, and a detachment of Legionnaires, visited the federal prison. Warden Alderholt assigned Captain Frye to pilot Dempsey through the mazes of the great pile and the yard.

There a mighty ovation arose from the 3,000 prisoners assembled. Tubby Walton was cheer leader. Dempsey was a hero even behind the barred sector and inside the walls where sentences keep vigil.

And later Dempsey sat with Bobby Jones and Young Stribling and 200 Atlanta businessmen at luncheon in the Piedmont hotel and again he broadcast his sparkling smile.

Two of the famous guests at the Dempsey luncheon were Joe Cobb and "Scott" Lowry, youthful stars in "Our Gang" movie comedies. The boys now are playing the Georgia theater and were attended by Marty Simon, theater manager.

The short program of speeches was gracefully handled by O. B. Keeler as toastmaster.

After the afternoon Dempsey visited Stone Mountain, spoke over WSB and gave Atlanta Boy Scouts the thrill of a lifetime.

NOT BORED.
It is inconceivable that Dempsey could keep up this constant touring without a rest.

WINTER SPORTS ON AT GEORGIA

Basketball Team Prepares for Trip to Florida Over Week-End.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 7.—With the opening of the new term all winter sports at the University of Georgia are now in full swing. The varsity basketball team has already opened the season, winning two games and losing one during the first four days of the new year. Previous to the closing of college for the holidays the team played three practice games and won all of these.

Furman University, with a team in fine condition for such an early game, defeated the University team 24 to 22 in a most exciting struggle, but several days later Georgia hit a winning stride and defeated Oglethorpe University in two games, 31 to 29 and 44 to 11.

The team is now preparing for a trip into the state of Florida, playing Stetson College in De Land, Fla., on Thursday night, and meeting the University of Florida in Gainesville in two games, Friday and Saturday. This trip will be a large measure to determine the future personnel of the team, as the entire squad of 12 men will be carried along in an effort to find out the right men for positions in future games.

The freshman team has also begun practice with the usual number of substitutes. Over 60 men have answered the call for practice and from these men it seems certain that another good team will be developed.

The swimming team is going through daily splashes in the large tank in Memorial hall, undergoing for the present only conditioning work until they are ready for the different events. Swimming is in its fourth year of existence and a good schedule of competition has been prepared for a season.

The popular branch of athletics brings out a large number of students, and its growth has been very encouraging. Meets have been arranged with Clemson, both at Clemson and Athens, with Georgia Tech both in Atlanta and Athens with one dual meet with Emory University. The team will also participate in the conference championships held in Atlanta on March 1. The freshman swimming squad had two meets every year, both dual affairs with the freshman team from Georgia Tech.

Increased interest in boxing seems to indicate that more men than ever will try for places on this team. Last year the boxing team enjoyed considerable success and the progress in this sport has been so consistent that everybody is looking forward to an interesting year with plenty of competition for who reports.

Bouts with Clemson College, Tulane in New Orleans, The Citadel in Charleston, S. C., and South Carolina in Athens, have been definitely scheduled, while a trip to Charlottesville, Va., for the final conference championships is always one of the definite engagements.

The fencing squad under Professor Jeter, the lacrosse team under Captain Nicholas and the polo team under Captain Lambert are making preparations to open practice during this week. The freshman basketball team is practicing under the direction of George Keen, former All-Southern star, and the varsity team is again under the direction of Coach H. J. Stigman, while Clarence Jones, trainer of the football team, has full charge of the swimming and boxing teams.

Strib Has Chance, Says Jack Dempsey

Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, believes that W. L. (Young) Stribling, who tossed away his cautiousness and wades into the present heavyweight crop with the idea of scoring a series of knockouts, has a good chance of winning the crown.

Dempsey, here to referee the Farmer Joe Cooper-Ted Goodrich welterweight bout last night, spoke briefly to newspapermen regarding the muddled situation among the heavyweights.

Babe Ruth Refuses To Accept Contract Terms of Yankee Club

75,000 OFFER IS PASSED UP BY SWAT KING

First Salary Row at New York Ends in Dead-lock.

No Home Run Bonus for Babe

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Babe Ruth's salary may be bigger this year than ever before but he won't get a bonus for hitting home runs. General Manager Ed Barrow says that when the time comes the Babe and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, the Yankees' president, will talk over the contract but the bonus system has never been considered.

By Frank Getty, United News Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The battle over Babe Ruth's new contract started unexpectedly today when the big ball player visited the Yankee offices and was closeted for two hours with Ed Barrow, the club's business manager.

"It looks like a long drawn out debate," grumbled the Babe when he emerged.

"Now, we didn't get anywhere. Contract or no contract, I'm going to Florida Saturday to play golf and start getting into shape."

RUTH VS. RUPPERT.

The argument over the home run king's wages for 1930 and succeeding years will boil down eventually to one between Ruth and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees. Barrow, as business manager, submitted a preliminary proposition to the Babe and then went to report to his boss.

A letter from Barrow offered Ruth a salary of $75,000 for the coming season. The contract called for what the Babe considers an insufficient increase over his salary of $70,000 a year which he has received for the past three seasons.

2. It did not contain concessions in the matter of exhibition games upon which Ruth is prepared to insist.

As far as this matter of dollars is concerned, Babe and Colonel Ruppert probably can come to terms without much difficulty. There has been talk of the home run king holding out for $100,000 a year, but Babe has his tongue in his cheek when he mentions that figure.

$75,000 A SEASON.

The contract offered by Barrow called for $75,000 a year for two years, and Ruth thinks he can do better than that.

Ruth's counter proposal asked for a salary of $85,000 for three years and was temporarily rejected by the Yankees.

As for the matter of exhibition games, this concerns Barrow, as business manager, directly. The Yankees always have netted a neat sum from these exhibition contests, principally, of course, because the crowds turned out to see the Babe.

Ruth said recently that he wanted to be excused from such exhibition games, except in certain circumstances. He said that his illness last spring, which kept him from the game for weeks, was due directly to a cold acquired in an exhibition game at Chambersburg, May 31.

SPRING GAMES HELP.

Barrow insists that if Ruth does not play in exhibition games the Babe should make up some of the difference in receipts to the club, since the Yankees won't draw well without the famous slugger.

"Part of the large salary we pay Ruth is in return for his drawing power in exhibition games," the business manager declared.

"A player who signs a contract with a ball club has to play baseball whenever and wherever the club plays."

Ruth will leave for Florida Saturday and probably will hear next from the Yankees next week, when the contracts to all players will be put in the mails.

Petrels Meet J. P. C. Tonight

Another pair of Atlanta's major basketball teams will swing into action at 8:30 o'clock tonight when the Jewish Progressive Club and Oglethorpe University will meet on the South Pryor street court.

It will be the third game for the home team, while Oglethorpe was beaten by Georgia University last Saturday night in its opening game.

The Progressives, under the direction of Coach Monk Dorfan, former center of the team, are looking forward to the greatest year in the history of the club. It is virtually a veteran combination with several worthy additions and in each of the previous games the club has played jam-up basketball.

Little is known of the Oglethorpe team except that it was decisively defeated by Georgia on the Bulldog court in Athens. Several of the star football players of the past season are members of the basketball team.

A preliminary game between the J. P. C. Reds and some local amateur team will start the festivities at 7:30 o'clock.

Secret Formula Has Super-Power for Killing Cold Germs. Immediately Absorbed by the System, Quickly Relieves Pain, Reduces Fever and Prevents Serious Complications.

The after-dinner danger from colds is to be feared more than the disease itself, leaving as it does a weakened bronchial tract that is susceptible to serious bronchial or pulmonary breakdown. This great discovery, Aspirinal, the largest selling liquid cold remedy in the world, not only stops the cold, but minimizes the possibility of a weakened system afterwards.

No matter how severe, painful or aggravating the cold, or how frigid you feel, a few doses of Aspirinal will bring almost instant relief. Being in liquid form, the system immediately absorbs it and the very first dose relieves grippiness and brings a warm, comfortable glow all over the body.

Aspirinal contains a slight laxative, so necessary in treating colds, but does not contain quinine, so it can be taken while attending to work, indoors or out-of-doors, with no danger of taking a fresh cold. Get at all drug stores. Get relief or get your money back. (Adv.)

in vaudeville or in his capacity as referee of boxing contests without becoming worn and bored. Yet he does this sort of thing week in and week out. He spends time between engagements on trains where he is nervous and alone. The crowd is always there jostling him or knocking at his door.

Yet that strange upsetting psychological effect these crowds have on him is unexplained. So serene as Jack is, the nature of Jack Dempsey. For he likes people—and vice versa.

The present generation has produced few such magnetic personages. They can be named on the fingers of one hand. And of them all none is so unaffected, so serene as Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler.

Ruth will leave for Florida Saturday and probably will hear next from the Yankees next week, when the contracts to all players will be put in the mails.

Reiselt Takes Billiard Lead

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Otto Reiselt, veteran Philadelphia cue master, tonight went into the undisputed leadership of the national three-cushion billiard tournament with a 50-42 victory in 45 innings over Allan Hall, 28-year-old St. Louis sensation. It was Hall's first defeat of the tournament and Reiselt's fifth straight victory.

Reiselt has yet to meet Johnny Layton, the defending champion, and Gus Copulos, of Detroit. The loss dropped Hall into a tie for second place with three victories in four starts.

Rutgers Gymnasium Destroyed by Fire

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ballentine gymnasium, housing facilities and equipment Rutgers university had for winter sports, was destroyed by fire before dawn today, at a loss of $125,000.

The cause of the fire was undetermined. When firemen reached the campus, the interior of the building was a mass of flames, and their efforts were centered on saving near-by buildings.

Little is known of the Oglethorpe team except that it was decisively defeated by Georgia on the Bulldog court in Athens. Several of the star football players of the past season are members of the basketball team.

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

Joplin, Mo., and Big Money.

A young man from Joplin, Mo., is starting out again today in his pursuit of rather important money. It is at least important money as far as professional golf goes, but the average boxer wouldn't take a bow for that much cash, much less try to fight. At any rate, first prize in the Los Angeles open is $3,500, and that is close to the rate of $50 for 72 holes.

As affairs have been breaking in professional golf, Horton Smith is the leading favorite, but there is another young fellow by the name of Mac Smith who should not be overlooked in case he enters. Mac Smith tied for the United States open in 1910. That seems to be a matter of 20 years ago, but he was still good enough to win the $10,000 Los Angeles open in 1928 and 1929. When Mac Smith tied for first place in the United States open, Horton Smith was not quite two years old. But the difference of 20 years doesn't mean as much in golf as it means in most other competitions, since the true golf swing depends more upon timing and co-ordination rather than upon power.

The two Smiths are among the two finest swingers golf has ever known. They have in many ways, more smoothness than most of the other stars. Their swings look simpler and more easily made. But it might be remembered that over a hundred scores of these are good enough to win. One of them is Hagen, who is about due to hit his oldtime speed. So far he hasn't quite hit his stride in the far west wars of turf and sand, but with real money to shoot at he is more dangerous than at any other time. Yet Hagen is the type who would have a better chance on a raw, wind-swept links than he would in the softer and less billowy air of Los Angeles.

Explaining Horton Smith.

A number of golfers from time to time have written in asking why it is that Horton Smith, only 21 years old, with little tournament experience before, has been able to win eleven open tournaments in a year; practically his first year of competition.

The answer is fairly simple. The correct golf swing is based upon certain fundamentals that apply to all who play—the flat and lean, the old and young, the weak and strong. There is no such thing as a correct swing for one type and a different swing that is also correct for another. The basic principles of the correct swing, as Alex Morrison has pointed out before, are union of wrist-action, correct balance or weight shifting, and the correct location of the head at the moment of impact, or through the swing until after the ball is hit and away.

It so happens that Horton Smith was able to work out the basic principles of the main fundamentals in the right way. Whether he stumbled upon them or was apt enough as a student of the game to work them out is not known. Anyway, he has a swing that carries the main fundamentals, which is something few golfers have.

Add to this correct swing, which is by all odds the most important factor, he has youth, health, strength, resilience, the ability to concentrate and a high class tournament disposition, which carries almost no raw edges. One trouble with the vast army of golfers is that they know little about the fundamentals of true swinging, especially anything connected with the fundamentals of balance or weight transference, which is completely essential in the proper or consistent timing of any good swing. Not one golfer in fifty is in position to apply either power or control from the top of his backswing as he starts the downward punch. And one in fifty is breaking the news gently and giving the vast majority the benefit of the odds.

The Carnera Carnival.

Primo Carnera's place in the pugilistic sun is still a matter of controversy. His displacement in the sun, as shown by his shadow, is beyond dispute. His fighting ability is another argument. There are many who look upon the visiting giant as 288 pounds of Roquefort, Gorgonzola or what you will.

As Lewis Carryl once wrote: "Well, call it anything you please, At any rate it is a cheese."

There are others who have seen him in action who believe that Carnera is a much better fighter than he is credited with being and a dangerous party in competition. Some of these even go so far as to say that he could even give Jack Sharkey all the bother Sharkey wanted in 12 or 15 rounds. There will be no definite line on his position or place over here until he shows his wares under fire against some suitable opponent, some one at least good enough to prove that he is a bust or that he is pretty good.

Those who have seen him at work say that he is not only larger than Jess Willard, but much faster with his hands and feet. His debut will either be interesting or funny, and that will be something in a somewhat drab season.

Baker and Osting, two heavyweights from Fort McPherson, opened the show with a four rounder that was full of action and hard licks. After the first round it looked as if they could not hit each other but both slowed up a bit and continued until Referee Budd gave them a draw.

In the second preliminary Carl Knowles, of Rome, Ga., scored his 17th straight knockout. It was a terrific right to Jack Monahan's jaw and a left to the body. Monahan's jaw was broken and he was out for good.

SHARKEY-SCOTT FIGHT IS SET FOR MIAMI RING

Representatives of Fighters Agree to Terms for February Bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Phil Scott, of England, and Jack Sharkey, Boston boxer, will meet in the ring at the second annual "Battle of the Palms" in Miami, Fla., February 27, it was announced tonight.

The announcement, made by the Madison Square Garden Corporation sponsors of the Miami battle, said that representatives of Scott and Sharkey had agreed to terms and would formally sign contracts tomorrow.

Just what financial arrangements were made the Garden declined to say until the contracts are made public tomorrow. The announced followed a long conference at the Garden of representatives of the corporation, Sharkey and Scott.

Selection of Scott as Sharkey's opponent at Miami ends all of the Garden's difficulties in getting the Boston sailor's consent to fulfill his contract obligations. Previously Sharkey had declared he would not box Tuffy Griffiths in the southern arena. He named Scott as the opponent he wanted to meet.

The Garden immediately went into a huddle with Jimmy Johnston, Scott's manager, and after a wrestling over terms for several days finally emerged with an offer agreeable to the Britisher's representative. Johnston had been holding out for 25 per cent of the receipts as opposed to 20 per cent offered by the Garden. A compromise between these two figures probably was arrived at although the Garden was reticent on that subject.

Sharkey's objections to various opponents suggested by the Garden were based on the theory that as the outstanding American contender for the vacant heavyweight throne he should be asked to meet only outstanding rivals. Griffiths, he maintained, was too small and would not prove to be a good box office attraction in the south.

The climax was reached when Jack told the story—have you heard it?—of the Irishman, last on an impromptu entertainment program, who, disclaiming any talent along the lines of footwork or vocalization, offered to fight anyone in the house as his bit. Jack's audience saw the point to the story, but no one stepped forward to accept the implied challenge.

They laughed. There was a note of scorn in their laughter, as if to say, "Purple parrots! Who under the sun would try conclusions with that guy? Me, I don't live in Milledgeville, nor do I care for the speedy demise which would be certain."

Jack made his exit champion-fashion, turning every other statue to bow and wave. And he got a hand which might have been better during his career in volume as the crowd would hardly compare with the numbers which have seen him fight, but one which was given with such a will of spirit as has surely never been equalled.

Jack liked it. And if Scouts couldn't have been more pleased. And the others who were present revelled in the proximity of the Mauler and in the atmosphere of joy—unconfined.

Wave Completes 1930 Schedule

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tulane's 1930 football schedule announced tonight at an alumni banquet carries nine games including an intercollegiate contest with Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., on October 4.

This marks a renewal of football relations with Northwestern which Tulane defeated, 19 to 7, at Chicago in 1925 when Tulane had its other powerful team. The 1930 schedule dropped Sewanee and Louisiana Normal and substituted Northwestern and Birmingham-Southern.

Lloyd "Preacher" Roberts, of Steiger, Okla., was elected captain of the Green Wave for 1930 during the banquet and Morris Bodger, of New Orleans, was named alternate. Roberts served at the center position during the past season, while Bodger played guard.

The schedule: September 27—Southwestern at New Orleans. October 4—Northwestern at Evanston. October 11—Texas A. & M. at Dallas. October 18—Birmingham-Southern at New Orleans. October 25—Georgia Tech at Atlanta. November 1—Mississippi A. & M. at New Orleans. November 8—Auburn at New Orleans. November 15—University of Georgia at New Orleans. Thanksgiving—Louisiana State University at New Orleans.

GOODRICH WINS BY K. O.

men kept the crowd away from the front of the box where the fight were on. But the mob attacked from the rear. They climbed and crawled over Walter Candler to extend their pieces of paper for Jack to sign.

"In London one time a man handed me a blank promissory note to sign," Jack said between writing. "Later he filled it out for several thousand pounds. But I got out of it."

SUCH POPULARITY.

One noticed Dempsey examined every piece of paper rather carefully. In one minute he signed 15 times by actual count. Multiply that out on your fingers and get writer's cramp.

And on nearly every piece of paper on which Dempsey's name was written later appeared Young Stribling's. The demand for Stribling's autograph was quite cordial. Mrs. Stribling acted as secretary to both pugilistic authors.

So great was the press and the craning of necks toward the Dempsey party that one wondered after all why the fight card was put on at all. A simpler and less expensive arrangement would have been to have Dempsey sit at a desk and sign his name and smile.

EXCELLENT HUMOR.

The crowd was in fine humor. Three of the prelims ended abruptly in knockouts and hence the delay between bouts was considerable.

Through it all Dempsey manifested not only enough patience to make Jack seem positively peevish, but never failed to be cordial. He inclined his title as the world's most agreeable personage.

From Atlanta Dempsey goes to New Orleans to referee a 20-round fight. Then he goes to Detroit to open a vaudeville engagement for which he is to be paid $10,000 a week.

And then, Florida, perhaps. He will resume his role as fiscal entrepreneur in Chicago this summer.

And, as he hinted, he may fight after all.

BASEBALL

By Walter Trumbull.

Nothing in Peace Efforts, Says Trumbull.

One gathers that the 50-50 owners of the Brooklyn baseball club have come to a point of view that it is a matter that concerns nobody but the warring owners. The franchise of the Brooklyn baseball club comes under the head of property. Also baseball is a business.

If the owners want to ruin their business—well, it is their business. Only the magnates always in times of lean gate receipts hold the attitude that the baseball teams belong to the loyal fans, and all of that sort of thing. One moment they are that way and the next they are insisting that nobody should tell them how to run their business.

As things stand at Flatbush, the warring owners are in the same position as two incompatible owners of a race horse. In the saddling paddock one owner instructs the jockey to get the jump and keep in front. The other owner insists that the jockey must lay back and not try to get to the front until the turn. In this instance each owner has a 50 per cent interest.

Those sort of instructions are rather puzzling to the jockey. Mr. Wilbert Robinson, who has been acting as president-manager of the Dodgers, which would put him in the position of trainer-jockey for a horse in the same fix, naturally is embarrassed, as would be the jockey-trainer of a race horse in the same doubtful situation.

Or we might make another comparison. The McKeever estate and the Ebbs estate own a bulldog on the same 50-50 basis. The representative of the McKeever estate does not like the way that dog's tail wags and thinks that a little strychnine might put more pep in the canine. The representative of the Ebbs estate is willing enough to have the McKeever estate try strychnine on its half of the dog, even if it poisons the McKeever half, in fact, the Ebbs estate would shed not a tear if the McKeever half was poisoned and should become so defunct that it would pay for the strychnine.

But the Ebbs estate fears that strychnine applied to the entire dog might affect both halves of the dog at the same time and the Ebbs estate is convinced that strychnine would do its equity in the dog no good whatever. If a way could be found so that the McKeevers could poison their half of the dog without calling for antidotes for the Ebbs half, there might be at least an armed truce.

Then there would be other complications. If the strychnine happened to be tried and the dog showed signs of being ready to pass out, the McKeevers might protest against the use of the stomach pump on their half of the dog. And while they were getting out injections the dog might pass out entirely.

It is a very fine point of law. The case was put before Judge Landis, who has settled many a knotty legal problem. It was thought that he might out-Solomon Solomon on this one, but after listening to Mr. Steve McKeever and a few others, Judge Landis decided that the thing was too complicated for him, and John Heydler, president of the National League, is paging Solomon and getting no answer in the vicinity of Borough Hall.

The strange part of it is that the dog still is in the best of health despite its dual ownership.

Now that we have taken up the Brooklyn problem from the owners' point of view without giving any advice, we might take it up from the point of view of the Brooklyn fans. Last year Wilbert Robinson, in spite of an intolerable situation due to the opposition and hostility of one set of owners, built up a team that has splendid prospects for the next season. A run of early season illness prevented this machine from getting started last season.

There seems to have been something of a campaign started to oust Wilbert Robinson from the Brooklyn management. Knowing something of the motives behind this campaign, I can testify that it was not started with any notion of making the Brooklyn Baseball a more profitable investment or a more successful baseball aggregation. Mr. Robinson himself might give some idea as to these motives, only he has a violent objection to performing the act that is known to the boys as "blowing the whistle."

That is unfortunate, because the Brooklyn fans might like to know just what is behind the campaign. But, as the magnates feel upon some occasions: "The fans be damned." So long as they do not stay away from the box office they may jolly well be damned.

As to the record of Mr. Robinson, take the case of Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy, who, after winning one pennant in fifteen years, is hailed again as a genius. As manager of the Dodgers, Mr. Robinson has won two pennants in that space of time and is now about set to come pretty close to winning another.

The affairs of the Brooklyn Baseball Club are furnishing the boys with no little merriment. Many a shrewd business man has his eyes on that Brooklyn franchise. It is a valuable piece of property, all of the enhanced valuation having come through the association of Wilbert Robinson with the club.

I happen to know that before Robinson was manager the club had been in the second division for 14 years and that it possessed something of a deficit. With Robinson running it, the two estates holding the franchise gathered some few millions. Last year the team showed no more promise after the bad start than the previous year, but the attendance increased to the extent of a hundred thousand over the attendance of the year previous, despite the fact that it was not generally a good baseball year, excepting for the two pennant contenders.

However, the customers are not at all interested in the economics of baseball. They are callous enough in financial matters not to care whether Steve McKeever can raise the upkeep of the gold-headed cane or not. But I think that they believe in fairness and would resent the casting of a genius, as the boys who built the Brooklyn Baseball Club in big league in name only to what it has been and what it promises to be in the very near future.

Of course, things look black to the boys right now, but you can take it for granted that Ebbs Field will have all the box offices open and all of the turnstiles running on schedule for the season of 1930. Also it is fairly safe to assume that Wilbert Robinson will ruminate on his plug from the same place in the Brooklyn dugout.

Big League Managers Have Many Tribulations Because of Fans.

Big League Umpire. (Copyright, 1930, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.) NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Often a crowd plays a vital part in the tribulations of a manager. Take an odd incident in the tilt for supremacy between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Yankees in 1927.

Of course you recall the Cuyler-Bush strike that season. Bush, now manager of the Pirates, and Cuyler, now of the Cubs, was one of the team's stars in 1927.

The trouble started when Cuyler objected to the place Bush had selected for him in the batting order. Usually such a matter is settled amicably, but in this case it was not. The trouble started when Cuyler objected to the place Bush had selected for him in the batting order.

Instantly the fans took sides. Regarded as the star of the team, the Pirates nailed the pennant to the mast and prepared for the world series.

I chatted with Bush the day before the series. He asked if I wanted any particular dope about the Pirates. I assured him that my visit was purely for old time's sake. Upon second thought, I believe that it might be friends he would play Cuyler in the series, but that general belief was to the contrary. There was no prejudice against Cuyler, but he was guided only by managerial duty and the dictates of his conscience.

Likeable. "I certainly intend to play Cuyler at the first opportunity," said the doughty little leader. "Understand," he continued, "I have no personal grudge against Cuyler. He is one of the most likable fellows I have ever met, and a streak on the field. His mistakes cannot go undisciplined."

Then came the boiling point of the affair. At the start of the second game, the delegation of fans that were diehard bleachers at Pittsburgh flung a banner with the legend, "We want Cuyler." The fans yelled viciously for their star, and Bush refused to yield. No manager ever faced a crueler barrage of criticism than Bush as he trotted out to the coaching line, and to the bench.

Attempt. Bush could hardly have submitted to the demands of the crowd. They had taken matters in their own hands and had apparently ignored the fact that the manager was on the field rather than the outside. It was a magnificent attempt to rescue Cuyler, but Bush being responsible for the conduct and management of the team it was his duty to remain adamant. I shall always remember his unflinching attitude throughout the series as a fine example of a manager's duty.

Bush is not the complaining kind. Last season, when his Pirates were defeated by the Yankees, he quietly and unexpectedly resigned. He offered no excuses or alibis. Such is the peppy little fellow who will lead the Chicago White Sox this coming season.

Asked for Bout. Mullen told of receiving a letter from Daly from Cleveland asking for a chance to fight Shires and told of encouraging him to fight. He said that the fight was provided by future ring appearances provided he defeated Shires. Mullen denied that any effort was made to induce Daly to take the knockout.

Meade, who was in Daly's corner the night he was knocked out, said he never saw the young man until he was taken to the hospital. He testified that Daly was very intelligent. He said it required four men to drag him out of the ring after the knockout and that Daly weighed like a ton of cement.

Knockout Okay. Frederick Gardiner, a member of the Illinois commission, and Walter Vance, a member of the American Boxing Association, expressed the opinion that the knockout was an honest one. A report from Eddie Purdy, the referee, stated that the knockout was a fair one. Neither Daly nor Shires appeared at the hearing. Daly was explained, was financially embarrassed and that for reason was unable to leave his native Columbus, Ohio. Shires' wife was unable to attend because of an engagement to fight in St. Paul tonight, but that he would honor his appearance when the hearing is resumed tomorrow afternoon.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON

ATLANTA, Jan. 7.—Spot cotton closed steady; middling unchanged at 17.05.

SALES 300; receipts 2,016; shipments 430; stocks 87,188.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—An early advance on trade buying and covering promoted by a bullish view of the federal farm board statement regarding acreage, was followed by reactions in the cotton market today under hedge selling and a renewal of liquidation. March contracts sold off from 17.12 to 17.01 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady net 4 points higher to 2 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points and the active months soon showed net gains of 8 to 11 points with January selling up to 16.94, May 17.26 and July 17.53 on trade buying and covering which appeared to be combined with some commission house buying. Relatively steady Liverpool cables as well as the attitude of the federal farm board toward acreage contributed to the advance, but the demand tapered off at the higher prices and the market comparatively quiet.

Some hedge selling was reported in addition to realizing or reselling by early buyers on the reactions which followed, and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading, when March contracts made a new low price for the season. January advanced to 16.94, May 17.26 and July 17.53 on trade buying and covering which appeared to be combined with some commission house buying. Relatively steady Liverpool cables as well as the attitude of the federal farm board toward acreage contributed to the advance, but the demand tapered off at the higher prices and the market comparatively quiet.

The statement of the federal farm board, warning growers against overplanting, and stating that what the board will do to help in marketing next year's cotton crop will depend upon what farmers do at planting time, came in for a great deal of comment during the day. There was evidently buying early on a belief that the statement would operate against any increase in acreage. The failure of demand to broaden more importantly on this view appeared a disappointment to early buyers however, and probably accounted for part of the selling.

January notices, representing about 6,000 bales, were reported, and led to some further near-month liquidation which was absorbed at a slight widening of the difference.

Liverpool reported that trade calling and covering had absorbed liquidation in that market.

United States port receipts 2,085,024. Exports 41,064, making 4,457,119 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS CLOSING UNCHANGED.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The cotton market opened active, prices advancing 12 points on favorable Liverpool cables and a constructive view of the federal farm board's statement regarding acreage during 1929. A great part of the day was lost later on a renewal of liquidation due to a reported circulation of additional January notices both here and in New York and then ruled quiet and steady in the afternoon, closing practically unchanged for the day.

March, after advancing 12 points at 17.04, eased off to 16.95, down 9 points, and closed at 16.95, or 2 points net for the day. The general market closed steady, net 2 points up to 1 point down. Liverpool came in 3 to 5 points better than day and first traders here showed gains of 4 to 6 points, March trading up to 17.04 and May 17.30, or 11 to 12 points above the previous close.

Later liquidation set in, induced by the January notices circulated, and prices eased off to 16.95 for March and 16.21 for May, or 9 to 10 points below the earlier high. January closed at 16.70, up 1 point; March at 16.95, and May at 17.30, up 2 points each.

STOCK MARKET AGAIN BECALMED BY LACK OF SPECULATIVE INTEREST

Despite Cheaper Money, Traders Remain Apathetic

proving opening of wells in Oklahoma for trading purposes was held partly responsible. Steel mill operations were reported at about 80 percent of capacity, having quickened only to the rate of mid-December, and most steel trade reports indicated that further acceleration would be gradual.

A strong and active feature of the market session was Radio Keith, which was bid up more than 2 points.

Albee preferred jumped 11. Sponsors of the stocks feel that the organization is in a position to show substantial earnings during the coming year. Although the reports were denied in authoritative quarters, it was rumored that Radio Keith might acquire Loews, as part of the reorganization of the Fox companies.

Another strong spot was Wabash preferred B, which mounted 7 1/2 points. Failure of the class A stockholders to win their suit for back dividends clears the way for resumption of payments on the B stock. The American Woolen shares rose about 3 points. A pool is understood to have been formed in these shares, and merger rumors have been circulated.

Communications mergers received no encouragement from Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union, in his testimony in Washington. Radio Corporation and International Telephone sagged moderately, American Telephone lost 2 points and Western Union, a more volatile issue, sold off nearly 8 points. In other shares lows of 2 to 5 points appeared in Air Reduction, American Water Works, American Tobacco, Auburn Auto, Boardman & Cheney, Chesapeake and Ohio, General Electric, Hudson's, Johns-Manville, Nash, National Biscuit, Simmons, and Underwood-Elliott. Union Trust Car dropped 10.

Wheat futures lost about 1 1/2 cents on reports of large Russian offerings and in response to weakness at Liverpool. Corn sagged about 1/2 cent, and cotton closed practically unchanged.

Foreign exchanges continued to decline, reflecting rumors of an early reduction of the Bank of England's rate. Sterling sagged close to par. Cables were quoted at $4.87-2.16, off 3-16. The French franc slipped well below the outgoing gold price.

Business and industrial news, however, was in general not of a character to enliven the bull crowd. Copper buying quieted down after the recent revival. Automotive news was disappointing. Studebaker earned its dividend by a rather narrow margin in the last fiscal year, and Franklin omitted the common dividend due at this time. Early estimates of last week's crude oil production indicated a large increase, more than cancelling the previous week's curtailment, and the market rose in near future.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The stock market remained becalmed to a day although call money sagged 4 percent for the first time in nearly two years. Share prices generally drifted lower, a few shares closing 2 to 10 points off. Total sales aggregated about 2,000,000 shares, the smallest full day's turnover since August of 1928, save for the session preceding Christmas, when sales fell below 1,000,000.

Failure of call money to make any headway with call money going back to 4 percent was a striking commentary upon the change of speculative attitude toward the past few months. It was only a comparatively short time ago that traders eagerly paid 10 percent for funds to buy the outside market today as low as 3 1/2 percent. Time loans for the shorter dates were shaded 1/4 of one percent to 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 percent.

Stocks in the Bank of England's discount rate from 5 to 6 percent is rather widely expected this week, and there is renewed talk of a reserve reduction in the New York reserve bank in near future.

THE SON OF TARZAN No. 39

Korak sighed, thinking of his own father and mother in far away London, as he waited for the glad reunion of father and daughter. The Arab was striding softly toward the girl; now he stood directly behind her. With a start the child glanced quickly up. Korak, amazed, saw her great, dark eyes fill with terror, saw her try to crawl away, and saw the Arab's cruel lips curl in a grim smile as he kicked and struck her brutally.

Above them, in the tree, a beast crouched where a moment before there had been a boy—a beast with dilated nostrils and bared fang—a beast that trembled with rage. The Sheik was stooping again to reach for the girl when the Killer dropped to the ground at his side. Astonished by this sudden step, Korak's clenched fist, backed by terrific apparition out of the clear air, he took a backward power, landed full on his face.

Bleeding and senseless the Sheik sank to the earth. Korak turned to the girl, standing wide-eyed and frightened. In an involuntary gesture of protection the Killer threw an arm about her shoulders and waited for the Sheik to regain consciousness. He spoke to her in English, then in the ape's language. She did not answer. Instead she made some motions. Korak understood her. She meant the Sheik would kill her for this.

Then she came to his side again and stood trembling. She did not fear him. Had he not saved her from a terrific beating? Never, in her memory, had another so befriended her. She looked into his face. It was a boyish, handsome face, nut-brown like her own. She admired the spotted leopard skin that circled his lithe body from one shoulder to his knees; envied him the metal ornaments he wore. And Korak looked at the girl!
